National Socreds 'Dead' Member Crosses Floor

OTTAWA (CP) — H. A. Bennett, 42-year-old MP for Medicine Hat, Alberta, told a press conference Wednesday that he was resigning from the Progressive Conservative Party.

Bennett:

But Why Join Fuzzy Liberals?

The defection of an Alberta MP to the ranks of the Liberals won't change the party's federal or provincial status in B.C., Premier Bennett said Wednesday.

The premier played down the possible effects of the decision by H. A. Bud Olson of Medicine Hat on the Socreds organization in this province.

Mr. Olson's announcement has been blamed on Alberta Premier Manning's booklet entitled "Political Realignment" which proposed national Socreds merge with Tories.

Mr. Bennett continued to sidestep direct answers to questions about his own choice, but he said it was well written and expressed a view to which Mr. Manning was fully entitled.

Of Mr. Olson's decision the premier said: "Everybody is entitled to make his own choice, but I don't know how anybody could join that fuzzy Liberal party."

Mr. Bennett said the latest development should not damage the B.C. "on-to-Ottawa" drive in the next federal election.

"What we need are MPs, more than the three we have now, who will speak not for this government but for the people

The 42-year-old MP for Medicine Hat, Alberta, told a press conference Wednesday that he was resigning from the Progressive Conservative Party.

"From my observations, the leaders of the Social Credit League of Alberta will continue to pursue the course of seeking an accommodation or 'marriage' with the Progressive Conservative party."

"My convictions and conscience, in keeping with the commitments I have made to the people of my constituency, prohibit me from endorsing or supporting this course."

A spokesman said Mr. Pearson's comment on the Olson step was:

"I am delighted." Acceptance of Mr. Olson's application, to be discussed at a weekend caucus of Liberal MPs and Senators, would boost the minority government's support.

Commons Dilemma Would Vanish

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — There is talk — and in the most influential Liberal circles too — that Prime Minister Pearson might appoint former Conservative leader Diefenbaker to the Senate. (See also Page 40.)

"It would solve Dief's dilemma," suggested a leading member of the Pearson

cabinet to a pair of reporters who paused Wednesday at his table in the parliamentary cafeteria to exchange the current gossip-of-the-day.

The Diefenbaker dilemma is that while, after 27 years in Parliament, he prides himself in being what he calls "a House of Commons man," he has said it wouldn't be proper for him to take his place on the backbenches now as private MP for Prince Albert.

He has spoken of the possible difficulties or even a breakdown that his presence in the Commons might cause Conservative leader Robert Stanfield.

He has talked too, of getting to work on his memoirs, complaining that he can't get started until the government provides him with "adequate" staff.

And he can't secure that staff unless he remains in Parliament.

So, suggests this Liberal cabinet minister who is busy circulating the possibility of the appointment, the Senate is the way out of the difficulty.

"It would be popular — you'd be surprised just how popular — with the public," argues the Liberal front-bencher. "The PM would get the same kind of high marks people gave him when he appointed Roly Michener, (the beaten Conservative Commons speaker) first as high commissioner to India and then as governor-general."

It would be considered by Canadians generally, he went on, as "the right thing, the decent thing to do."

This reason or motive for sending the former "Chief" to the Senate, was apart altogether from the fact that Diefenbaker with all those Parliamentary years behind him, would be what is usually

Nigeria Splintered

Shells Chase New Rebels

LAGOS (Reuters) — Nigeria's federal government Wednesday claimed its troops have entered the city of Benin in the Midwestern Region, only a few hours after a radio broadcast declared the region an independent republic.

A federal government military spokesman said government troops began shelling Benin in the afternoon and marched in two hours later.

Troops from the Eastern Region, which now calls itself the Independent Republic of Biafra, appeared to have withdrawn to the east, the spokesman said.

Israeli Tank Claims Three Patrol Boats

From UPI

Israel reported that one of its tanks on the east bank of the Suez Canal sank three Egyptian patrol boats on the southern reaches of the waterway Wednesday. Israel claimed the presence of the Egyptian vessels violated an agreement by the United Nations. (See also page 39)

Egypt denied that any of its ships were in the canal and accused Israeli forces of shelling the city of Suez and Port Taufiq in two separate bombardments, killing four civilians and wounding 11.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Hurricane Beulah, one of the mightiest storms in history, slashed multi-million-dollar destruction into the lower Texas coast Wednesday. The storm continued to spread death and havoc into the night.

Beulah did her worst at Port Isabel and Brownsville before dawn, coming ashore with 160-mile-an-hour winds at her centre. Wednesday night she continued to flay coastal areas with hurricane winds.

The death toll stood at 30. Six died in Texas.

Tornadoes spun off the big storm in record numbers. The Texas department of public safety counted 27 Wednesday — a record by 19 and Beulah showed no signs that she was near death after 12 days.

CORPUS CHRISTI HIT

Hurricane winds hit Corpus Christi, 100 miles from here, before sundown and continued into the late evening. Tornadoes also continued to develop. One spun near Corpus Christi in the late evening and another was started 250 miles to the north. State disaster planning officials warned persons in the south Texas coastal plains to remain in shelters.

TROOPS IN STREETS

There were no reports of looting but downtown Brownsville was barricaded and the business district was patrolled by armed troops.

There was more damage in Matamoros, across the Rio Grande River from here. How extensive it was, and whether there were any casualties, was not known immediately.

The little ranch settlements of Sarita and Riviera south of Corpus Christi were pounded by 90-mile-an-hour winds. Wednesday evening winds up to 75 miles an hour slashed at Corpus Christi after a day of gales. Hurricane force began at 7 p.m.

POWER OUT

Damage was widespread. Entire communities were isolated.

Electric power was cut off to almost all the storm-hit region. Some evacuees began leaving for their homes but Red Cross officials at Brownsville warned of dangerous flooding, tornadoes from the still mighty storm and downed power lines. Flood was running short in the Brownsville shelters.

DEATH SENTENCE

Red Cross officials in Brownsville said it would be several days before the damage could be estimated at this tip-of-Texas city.

Weathermen said, Beulah would continue to move inland, a death sentence even for a storm of her power.

Three reports from highway patrol units began to come into

Hippies 'Lazy Louts'

VANCOUVER (CP) — P. A. Gagliardi, British Columbia's colorful highways minister, just about blew the hippies out of the province Wednesday night with sheer lung power.

Speaking at the top of his voice to a service club dinner meeting, he called them "lazy, long-haired louts," who should start contributing something to society.

"I'm going to speak out against these dirty, long-haired people who go down the streets in smelly clothes, waving their dirty locks in the air."

"I feel like grabbing a pair of scissors to shear the locks from these people who are making a mockery of our way of life."

Housewife Writes A Happy Ending

FIRST-CLASS CITIZEN: Every once in a while this paper carries a story about a family which has been burned out and left without a stitch of clothing. Funds and drives get started, but then what happens?

If you feel like a lift today, read how Mrs. Sherrian White reacted to a fire three weeks ago.

Mrs. White says she "was near tears trying to figure out how to make my budget stretch to provide six back-to-school outfits when I heard about the fire that destroyed the Norman Williams home on the Colas Bay Indian Reserve."

"Right away I realized there were folks a lot worse off than me, so I phoned the chief and said I would organize a fund for the family and also run a clothing drive."

The fund now is at $1,194, with a few donations still arriving. About half that came from Mr. Williams' co-workers and the management at B.C. Forest Products.

The response to the request for clothing was so good the family's needs were filled in two days, and in just one day more they had all the furniture they needed. To cap it all, the department of Indian Affairs and the band fund came up with help and a new house will be going up soon.

The band drive came from one housewife who just decided to help. That's today's happy story.

RUNAWAY SUCCESS: The Western Association of Art Museums is meeting for the first-time in Canada, and chose Vancouver.

Before coming to B.C. delegates were asked by mail if they would like a side trip to Victoria to see the gallery, the Maltwood Museum and the Butchart Gardens. Only 20 said "yes."

After a few days in Vancouver, the charm of Victoria must have looked good to the art types.

Will Hoare, deputy director of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, stood up at the convention, subbing for Colin Graham who is convalescing, and asked just how many people wanted to make the trip. He was mobbed.

That's why the entire convention will move here Saturday for a buffet lunch at the gallery and then a tour.

EXTRA ART NOTE: The current exhibition of Japanese art is attracting so much attention that Prof. Michael Sullivan came up from California to look over the show. Mr. Sullivan, a world-renowned expert on Japanese art, looked over the gallery's collection of pottery and gave the staff a pleasant surprise. He told them one item that had caused some concern was not an 18th-century pot but a much more valuable 12th-century item.

Rapid Advances Being Made In Gout Treatment Methods

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you please explain gout and uric acid? I'm sure they go together, but I would like to know the cause and cure, if any. You explain things in your column as the untrained person can understand it. — L.B.

Thank you. That's what I try to do — explain things. When my TV set won't work, I don't want the repairman to give me the history of cathode ray tubes. I just want to know what ought to be done to fix the set, and, if possible, I want to know how I should treat the machine so it will keep working. People are entitled to the same type of answers concerning health.

Yes, you are right about uric acid. If too much accumulates in the system, it gathers in the form of urate crystals in the joints and elsewhere, and then you have the exquisite pain of gouty arthritis.

Why some people accumulate uric acid and others get rid of it in sufficient quantities is not completely understood even by the authorities on metabolism.

However, we don't have to know all the "whys" to treat gout successfully. Colchicine (and some other drugs) are effective in stopping an acute attack.

To prevent future attacks, we have to find some way of preventing this buildup of uric acid. Diet helps some, but the big advance has come roughly in the last dozen years: discovery of uricosuric drugs — medications which help the body discharge uric acid.

RULES FOR DRUGS

This isn't a "cure." One has to keep on taking the drugs in very small quantities, however, for life. There are well-established rules by now as to just how these drugs should be taken. They should NOT be used in combination with some other drugs. There are distinct drawbacks if a patient takes the drugs for a time, then stops and subsequently starts them again.

Unhappily, many people with gout are not aware of the rapid advancement in treatment in the last few years. Once proper treatment has been established, the cruel misery of gout as we used to know it can be brought to an end.

the emergency operating centre at Austin.

"Port Isabel appears to be 85 per cent destroyed," one report said.

"Laguna Heights (another coastal community between Corpus Christi and Brownsville) 75 per cent homes damaged, 40 per cent appear total loss," the report said.

LEJ COUNTRY
On Beulah - spawned tornado roared through tiny Burnet on the northern fringe of what Texans call Lej Country — the hill — and — lake spotted farm and ranch lands north of President Johnson's ranch. Burnet was some 250 miles from Beulah's centre.

Torrential rains continued in the Brownsville area, which would remain plagued by flooding for days.

"All precautions should be continued," the weather bureau noted.

NO HIGH TIDES
Feared high tides of 10 to 15 feet at Corpus Christi failed to develop. Fifteen feet would have put the sea a foot over the protecting seawall.

Gordon Baxter of radio station KTRM in Beaumont and Mike Simpson of station KGBT-TV in Harlingen reached Port Isabel while the hurricane remained strong.

"The town was 50 per cent destroyed and 100 per cent damaged in the true sense of the word, homes and businesses," said Baxter. "Telephone poles not only were knocked down—they were broken in two and three places."

BUSINESS GONE
"A waterfront business was leveled and stacked at the base of the old lighthouse."

"A brick motel was scattered so much it looked like a kid's building blocks that he had tired of and scattered. The police station was blown out and abandoned."

"One area was damaged so much you couldn't tell where the buildings were and where the street was supposed to be."

"The town looked as if there had been saturation bombing."

CAR BLOWN AWAY
Simpson's automobile was blown off the road twice and Baxter had to pull him free the second time.

An estimated 30,000 persons fled ahead of the storm.

The U.S. Coast Guard estimated 15 to 25 expensive deep-water shrimp boats were sunk by high tides and strong winds. One operator said such boats cost $35,000 to $50,000.

The coast guard said another four shrimpers operating in bays and worth $10,000 each were swamped.

A tornado killed three persons near Palacios and injured seven. It destroyed three homes, a trailer home and numerous cars. Another tornado at El Campo destroyed a barn. One man was killed and another injured in a tornado at Edna, 200 miles from Brownsville.

FLOODING FEARED
The hurricane pushed tides well above normal heights as far as the Louisiana border.

Rains accompanying the hurricane could reach as much as 15 inches the weather bureau said, causing heavy flooding on the flat Texas coastal plain.

The weather bureau at Miami said Beulah is the third largest on record for sheer size, although others have caused more destruction and loss of life.

It said the two larger were the New England hurricane of 1938 and Hurricane Carla which hit the Texas and Louisiana coasts in 1961.

ers in the Commons to 131, and reduce Social Credit to four.

The Conservatives have 84, the NDP 22, the Creditists eight, independents three and there are three seats vacant.

Asked whether he expects a cabinet post as the only Alberta Liberal, Mr. Olson said he hoped he will at least have as good a chance as anyone else with his experience and other qualifications. But he had no promises.

He dispatched a letter of resignation to A. B. Patterson, MP for Fraser Valley and interim leader of Social Credit, who said he's very unhappy with Mr. Olson's decision.

The Medicine Hat MP said in a press release:

"In my opinion, the National Social Credit Party, for all practical purposes, is dead."

Mr. Olson said one of several reasons for concluding the party is dead was Publication by Alberta Premier E. C. Manning of a book "encouraging Social Credit supporters to assist in reorganizing one of the two parties other than Social Credit" and the decision of the national council to close the party's national office here.

The announcement caught Socreds officials in Medicine Hat by surprise.

Jim Miller, defeated Liberal candidate in the 1965 federal election, said Mr. Olson should resign his seat.

He said he could not see how Mr. Olson could justify his step to the electors.

"He had the support of the constituency as a Socred and the electorate had the opportunity to put a Liberal candidate in office but decided not to."

Defenbaker has been careful to make no firm commitments as to his future, saying the decision as to whether he stays in Ottawa is one for his constituents.

There have been reports that he may resign from the Commons and never return to Parliament Hill.

He himself has said, perhaps with some qualification, that he won't speak again in the House and won't run for re-election in the next campaign.

But return to Ottawa he will, for in a letter to a friend he has written under the date of Wednesday, Sept. 20:

"I will be leaving for the west today, and on my return to Ottawa I hope you will give me a call."

So he is coming back — to the Senate?

Thant Idea

Mideast Envoy —Yes or No?

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Egypt and Israel remain cool to the idea, proposed originally by Canada, that Secretary-General U Thant send a special envoy to the Middle East to report to the UN on events there.

Canada presented the plan in a resolution at the summer session of the Security Council. However, although the resolution still is on the agenda, it was put aside when the Middle East debate was transferred to a special emergency session of the General Assembly.

Thant revived the scheme in his annual report Tuesday, saying that such an appointee "could serve as a much-needed channel of communication, as a reporter and interpreter of events and views... and as a sifter and harmonizer of ideas in the area."

The letter strongly criticized the present government of South Vietnam, the elections, the statistics issued on the progress of the war, the handling of refugees and the increase of prostitution, corruption and crime.

Leaders Resigning

Viet Advisers Rap War Policy

SAIGON (LAT) — A leader of the International Voluntary Services said Wednesday he would urge members of his group to remain active in Vietnam despite his own resignation in protest against U.S. policy.

Don Luce, 33, director of the IVS in Vietnam, met Wednesday with U.S. ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and handed him an "open letter" for President Johnson.

The letter, containing the signatures of 48 of the 163 members of the agency — which provides advisory services in education, agriculture, and community development, expresses sharp opposition to Vietnam policy.

LEADERS QUITTING

Luce and three other top IVS leaders have said they will resign in protest as soon as replacements can be found. However, Luce urged some members to stay on and work for the betterment of Vietnam. IVS, founded in 1953 to provide specialists in advising and working closely with underdeveloped nations, is totally supported financially by the U.S. Aid for International Development Agency.

The letter called for de-escalation of the war, an end to the bombing, stopping the use of defoliants, recognition of the National Liberation Front, and formation of an international peace commission to decide the future of South Vietnam. "The war as it is presently being waged is self-defeating in approach," the volunteers declared. "The war must be stopped."

Meanwhile, an Egyptian spokesman also ruled out any compromise with Israel over the presence of Israeli troops on Arab territory.

The Arabs, who hope to rally opinion in the General Assembly for resolutions condemning Israel as the aggressor in the five-day war and demanding complete, unconditional withdrawal of Israeli troops, have rejected any form of direct Arab-Israeli negotiations.

ON OTHER HAND

The Israelis, on the other hand, insist on direct negotiations — which would at least imply Arab recognition of Israel as a state. They reject the idea of third-party intervention, by the UN or anyone else.

Meanwhile, the General Assembly welcomed Cuban delegates back to the fold Wednesday and then turned to the business of its 22nd session, urged by its new Communist president toward renewed efforts to seek "a lasting solution" to the Middle East problem.

ALL SETTLED

Cornellu Manescu of Romania, elected president Tuesday, opened the meeting with an announcement that the U.S.-Cuba customs incident, sparking Tuesday's walkout by the Cuban delegation, had been "satisfactorily settled."

Manescu welcomed the Cubans to the morning session. They included Ambassador Ricardo Alarcon Quesada and nine other delegates who were delayed by the incident Tuesday in the Bahamas. They arrived in New York Tuesday night.

CUBANS LEAVE

Six Cuban delegates left the hall Tuesday protesting that an agreement on diplomatic immunity was violated when U.S. immigration authorities in Nassau, the Bahamas, insisted on inspecting the baggage of other Cubans on their way to New York for the session.

U.S. delegate Arthur Goldberg denied the allegation and said the Cubans did not claim immunity for some wooden crates.

The senate subcommittee members were able to ask Sharp — under strict secrecy — what he would do if President Johnson gave him a free hand.

The admiral also proposed concentrating U.S. bombing raids against the Hanoi and Haiphong areas and the China-North Vietnam border zone.

The six North Vietnamese target systems he wanted to destroy by bombing included all military complexes, power plants, air defence installations, and oil storage, transportation and industrial facilities.

SIX SYSTEMS

Sharp produced a table showing that of 436 separate targets in these six systems, 253 were struck and 184 left untouched. The Johnson administration prohibited raids on 107 of the targets.

Cheers For Smith

SALISBURY (UPI) — Premier Smith Wednesday angrily charged in parliament any British claim to continued responsibility for the breakaway state was "preposterous."

Britain, he said, ceased to have any responsibility over Rhodesian affairs with the Unilateral Declaration of Independence Nov. 11, 1965.

THE FACTS

"Whatever the British government's pretensions and legalistic arguments are, the facts are the British government bears no responsibility whatever for Rhodesia," Smith told parliament.

"On the contrary," they are doing their best to destroy Rhodesia's economy in the hope this will make it easier for extremists to take over the government of this country."

He was answered with deafening cheers.

HONG KONG (UPI) — A youth was convicted by a kangaroo court for neglecting the thoughts of Mao.

In Tokyo, two Japanese correspondents who were expelled from Peking as a result of a diplomatic dispute between Japan and China, said the era of reporting from wall posters was over.

The nine Japanese correspondents who used to be in Peking kept the world informed of internal events by reporting the contents of posters put up by various factions.

Missile Defence

IF THE ENORMOUS retaliatory might of the United States is not sufficient to deter Communist China from attacking American soil when it is able with nuclear missiles — which U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara with good reason says would be insane and suicidal — it seems scarcely credible that the building of a "thin-line" anti-missile defence will make the difference.

Rather, the $5 billion system of Nike-X anti-missile rockets which Mr. McNamara has announced the United States will build seems only likely, in conjunction with Soviet preparation of similar defences, to lead to a stepping-up of offensive capacity: the further development both in the United States and the U.S.S.R. of missiles to evade and to saturate each other's defences, and in China the redoubling of effort to catch up with the two leaders in potential destructive power and the means of delivering it.

Neither the thin anti-ballistic-missile umbrella nor the all-out shield that the U.S. joint chiefs of staff have advocated — which might cost $40 billion and which could yet be the outgrowth of the current partial victory for them — would alter the balance of fear in these circumstances. It would still be insane and suicidal to start a nuclear war.

Meantime, the regret of much of the world will be that the new weapons race which appears in prospect is a step away from instead of toward the beginning of nuclear disarmament which alone can promise that someone's insanity will not bring down the holocaust.

If there is an element of hope to the contrary in the situation it is that by proceeding with limited ABM installations to match those reportedly being put in place in the Soviet Union, the United States may give more weight to its so far unsuccessful representations to Moscow against escalation of this kind. But it is noteworthy that both sides are already reported working on, or in possession of, new multiple warheads designed to overwhelm the defences.

The decision to go ahead with the U.S. anti-missile system has been made, in any case, and outside regrets will not unmake it. And for Canada the move has special significance. The government with its own defence experts' advice must in coming months decide if or to what extent this country should participate in the ABM system.

If it is realistic for the United States to believe that the shield against Communist Chinese missiles may be needed, it must be realistic for Canada to look at the consequences if this defence were ever brought into action.

The interception and destruction of enemy missiles, by all accounts, would take place largely north of the border; the fallout and radiation by the same token would largely, perhaps primarily, menace Canadians. Extensive fallout shelters in Canadian cities could be seen as a minimum requirement, and ABM bases in Canada to remove the "kill" area further north as a further protection. The effect on the defence budget could be ruinous.

The United States, said to have advised but not consulted Canada before announcing the decision, has undoubtedly presented the government with a difficult political problem.

Heir Apparent?

THERE are intriguing aspects to the transfer of Mr. Hellyer from the defence ministry to the transport folio vacated by Mr. Pickersgill in order that the latter may assume the comfortable post of president of the new Canadian Transport Commission.

The defence minister was not "fired" from the arena which embattled him in controversy over his unification policies. It seems apparent he sought a change to promote his political ambitions — he has already made an initial bid to lead the Liberal Party when Mr. Pearson steps down — by creating a fresh image in an area free from the polemics his guidance of military affairs brought upon him.

In what by contrast can be cited as a more civilian realm he may expect to set about creating the kind of personal atmosphere that will stand him in good stead in the furtherance of his aim to become some day prime minister.

Equally plainly, it can be surmised, Mr. Pearson has acquiesced in his desire, not surprisingly since he has seemed to regard Mr. Hellyer as a protégé and never intervened, as another prime minister would and should have done, when the defence minister was chopping the heads off distinguished and high-ranking military personnel who ventured to disagree with him.

All through his four years at the defence ministry it became apparent that Mr. Hellyer basked exceedingly in the prime minister's favor and was given a free hand in his drastic reorganization of the armed forces.

So much so in fact it has seemed that this cabinet minister of authoritarian bent must have dominated the whole cabinet, and not alone Mr. Pearson.

But as it happens it is strange he should be moved from his defence responsibilities since he hasn't finished the job he himself set in motion.

Unification is still in the throes of incompleteness. The parliamentary bill governing the change has not even been proclaimed. A name for the three-in-one serviceman hasn't yet been coined. Many important details have still to be settled, and what the final outcome will be no one can say. Perhaps Mr. Hellyer himself can't say and is getting out while the getting is good.

Defence officials have said for instance that it will take several years before the three separate services are merged as envisaged, although for the public mainly in generalities, by Mr. Hellyer. It would seem therefore that he is running out on his own scheme.

Pity perhaps for Mr. Cadieux, his successor as head of the defence department, who may have to unravel or diminish some of Mr. Hellyer's grandiose notions.

The implications of the latter's transfer to the transport department, therefore, suggest that the adoption of a new ministerial guise is designed to put him in a preferred position for gaining the mantle Mr. Pearson is expected to doff in the near future.

And with all the prime minister's blessing behind it. In short, even, that he has been given the succession nod by the present leader of the Liberal Party.

"NOW do you get the picture?"

Supersonic Stakes

Russia Claims A Lead

By ROLAND HUNTFORD
from Stockholm

THE first super-sonic civil aircraft in regular service now seems likely to be neither the Anglo-French Concorde nor an American competitor, but a Russian model.

Mr. Boris Bugayev, the Russian deputy minister of aviation, gave this news on a recent visit to Stockholm in order to inaugurate a new direct jet service with Moscow.

He said the super-sonic passenger plane would make its first test flight this autumn, presumably in time for the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, in November. The Russians are trying to celebrate this year by celebrating the first flight of the Concorde.

It is now reported that the British Concorde will make its maiden flight next July instead of September, 1968. Nevertheless, if the Russian test flight takes place when Mr. Bugayev says it will — and there seems to be no doubt about this — it will be two to three months before the first Concorde gets off the ground, and more than two years before the Concorde's American rival, the Boeing 2707.

What puzzles aviation experts here, however, is Mr. Bugayev's claim that the aircraft will be in regular service towards the end of 1968, allowing scarcely a year for trials and modifications, where the Concorde is to undergo three years of flight tests before going into service during 1971.

If the Russian timetable is authentic it will mean that their aircraft designers have stolen a march on the West by new methods of planning on the ground. They may have devised new methods of testing components while prototypes were under construction to avoid loss of time in doing the same work during flight tests.

The new Russian aircraft is said to resemble the Concorde. It has the designation TU-144. It is the work of the leading Soviet aircraft designer, Andrei Tupolev. It will have a cruising speed of 1,460 miles per hour, with a range of 4,000 miles under full load. As a passenger aircraft, it will carry 120 plus crew. Its ceiling under normal conditions will be about 60,000 feet.

The Concorde will fly a little faster, carrying up to 140 passengers, but its range will be less — 3,500 miles.

Complications are bound to ensue with sonic booms over Sweden, Norway and Denmark. The Swedes are particularly concerned over this, and their government is said to be considering the prohibition of all supersonic flight until the discomfort and consequences to the public have been investigated.

Another aim of the Russians would seem to be the export market. They have apparently so designed the TU-144 as to avoid the production and development difficulties of both Anglo-French and American competitors, and to be able to offer their own aircraft before these are finished. Mr. Bugayev seemed confident of having beaten the West to the opening of the supersonic stakes.

Douglas May Try to Steal Tory Opposition's Thunder

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

THE signal's flashing red — danger — for the Conservatives as their New Guard prepares to take over from the Old Chief and his loyalist veterans with the Commons back in business Monday.

The danger isn't the Liberals with their front bench of tough old parliamentary cabinet hands, sly backed up by a sharp second row bench of bright young men-of-the-ministry.

The threat is Tommy Douglas, David Lewis, Stanley Knowles and the parliamentary guerrillas of the NDP. From the Commons kick-out into the first of a daily series of speaking sessions Monday, they could grab the Opposition ball and keep it.

Should they do this — and the perk is very real, for Douglas and company are fast on their feet to the House floor and swift to think off the top of their heads — they quickly and perhaps even easily become, in fact, if not in name, the real, effective opposition in the Commons.

The hazard is high for the Conservatives because, of all historical, political, economic, social, and cultural issues, the New Guard are reasonable men, quiet men who can usually see two sides to most questions.

Too reasonable — the perk is now — to be tough and uncompromising enough; from their sitting House Leader David Fulton on down through what might be the ranking members of this new team — New Brunswick's Gordon Fairweather and Tom Bell, Prince Edward Island's Heath MacDonald, Nova Scotia's John Foreman and P.E.I.'s John Horgan, Ontario's Bob Smith and Jack Irvine.

The Old Chief was a great many things, bitterly antagonistic, tough-minded, acridly stubborn, fiercely aggressive — but reasonable and able to see more than one side of an issue he was not.

Since they fell from power four years ago, the Conservatives have had what beyond any question has been the worst opposition with the best opposition leader.

Die-hard the despair of the intellectual wing which marries the New Guard... but he was the horror that terrified the Liberal frontbench.

He was, for all parliamentary lights and purposes, a one-man opposition.

He asked the provocative headline-making question of each working parliamentary day, but behind him on the Tory benches there were few who were able — or even willing — to exploit the opening he made and continue the attack with sharp follow-up queries.

It was usually Tommy Douglas who roared in with the supplementary questions on any really hot issue. Dief managed to explode in the House.

And so the headlines too often were shared.

The opposition has been such a one-man operation that the Conservatives haven't even had a housing critic — one of the biggest urban issues going — simply because the Old Chief wasn't all that interested.

Now, quiet, reasonable men, men who think things out, may be what the Conservatives and the country need.

But it's still the activists: the often unreasonable men shooting from the lip, who grab the parliamentary headlines and the radio-TV bulletins.

And as things usually have worked out, the political party suddenly toughened up, their very reasonableness, their quiet courtesy, their understanding of the complexities of many of the issues of the day and their inclination to think before speaking off, could make the headlines stealing, too ridiculously easy for newsmen Tommy Douglas.

Conservatives laid better hope, even pray, that by the time he makes it into the House and takes opposition command.

Until that day, unless acting House Leader David Fulton and the men around him have retreat from Warsaw

De Gaulle Failed To Shake Alliance

By NEIL ASCHERSON from Warsaw

NEVER, except in the army crisis which threatened France itself, has de Gaulle made so vast an effort as he has made in Poland. To win over the Polish people and the Warsaw government, he exhausted, praised, recounted history, shook thousands of hands, stood for hours in the sun or rain. His last appearance, before the cameras of Polish television on the day before his departure, will remain one of his most splendid public performances. Nobody who witnessed the passion and endurance of this old man, holding out his arms to "dear and noble Poland" in town after town, in streets, assemblies, could remain unmoved.

What was he trying to do? This has to be settled before discussing whether he succeeded. Broadly, he was summoning the Poles to revive their fiercely patriotic traditions in a contemporary way, to take advantage of the relaxing climate in Europe to play a more independent part in continental and world affairs. To help them, he offered to renege the old emotional and political bond with France which, also, under his guidance, has learned "to dispose freely of itself."

This is his vision of Europe after the Cold War, a concert of proud and independent nations, under the moral guidance of France which acts independently of the "two colossi of the universe." At lunch, in the Baltic resort of Sopot, he told his hosts: "You are made to be a great nation... France hopes and expects that you will be able to look a little further, a little wider, than you have been obliged to up to now. If you do so, the obstacles which today seem insurmountable will with- out doubt be surmounted. We, the French, are in course of doing this."

Here is the heart of his purpose for Poland. His spectacular affirmations that Silesia and Pomerania, still claimed by Bonn, are inviolably Polish are secondary. They reflect his belief that no nation-state can "dispose of itself" until its frontiers are secure. The essential is that Poland, like France, should loosen its allegiance to supra-national organizations like the Warsaw Pact or NATO and put its own interests first.

In his television speech, he said that he had seen Poland "solidly established in ethnic unity, within its own frontier, with its 1,000-year faith, its eternal hope, firm in possession of its national soul."

"New Poland and France, both full of ardour and ability, have much to achieve together and all the more because, in every respect, the Poles and the French resemble each other so much."

It was left to Mr. Gomulka, blunt and logical, to show President de Gaulle the limits of the possible. Following de Gaulle himself to the tribune of the Sejm, the semi-annual parliament, Mr. Gomulka told his guests that, to a friend of Poland, it was the government's duty to say what its views were. He then proceeded to hold de Gaulle's ideas up to the light. It was in fact the sort of analysis which a Western statesman might have made in a similar position.

History was all very well, but "tomorrow is more important than all the pages of the past." Anyway, Poland's long sentimental association with France, as a special relationship between two countries, had not granted her the "durable and important place in Europe which our country had been seeking in vain since the 18th century."

The Franco-Polish alliance before the war "could not save either Poland or France from the catastrophe of defeat and Hitler's occupation."

Hindering de Gaulle's appeals to seek more national independence, Mr. Gomulka remarked that France now no longer faced the "dilemma of choice between Poland and its powerful eastern neighbor."

France's weakness, he pointed out, was in friendly partnership with the Soviet states, not just with one selected nation.

And on the German question, de Gaulle has two serious liabilities for the Poles. The first is his Franco-German Friendship Treaty and its latest consequence, his engagement to support and plead for the Kiebsing government's new eastern policy. The second is his dogmatically rigid refusal even to contemplate the recognition of East Germany. To the high priest of nationhood, acceptance of the artificial division of Germany is out of the question.

This is very awkward for the Poles. They are, of course, delighted with de Gaulle's proclamations all over Poland that the Oder-Neisse frontier is permanent. But they now consider that recognition of the Oder-Neisse line matters less, if one is weighing conditions for better relations with West Germany, than would Bonn's de facto acceptance that a second German state exists. Poland is determined to maintain a friendly buffer state between itself and West Germany, and demands that Bonn accept the situation. Paradoxically, the West German foreign minister, Willy Brandt, is a good deal closer to the Polish position than de Gaulle.

Enemy of Revolution

Liu Called Villain Of Peking Piece

By FREDERICK NOSSAL from Hong Kong

BEHIND the well-guarded walls of Chungnanhai in Peking, an old man with steely eyes picks up the newspapers and starts to read.

Each day, he wonders what new charges his former comrades will bring against him. At times, a flicker of a smile must pass across his face, because even old revolutionaries surely retain a trace of humor.

The man is Liu Shao-chi, the disgraced president of China, and today the most vilified individual in the land.

He lives under virtual house arrest in Chungnanhai, the residence of China's top leaders. His critics force him to stay behind walls partly for his own protection.

The Chinese Communist press and radio have set up such a howl about his political crimes, that young Red Guards want to get at him personally to put him on trial.

Specially created loudspeakers have boomed denunciations made at anti-Liu rallies in Peking into the president's house. But even Chairman Mao Tse-tung seems loath to stage a public trial against the man who for almost a decade has been the Chinese head of state.

Liu Shao-chi, who is 67, heads the list of dishonored men. But because the Chinese Communists have had a history of crushing opponents within their ranks spiritually and politically rather than physically, Liu has not been harmed.

Liu was cast aside as a revisionist who lauded many Soviet heresies about Marxism. But he was never named. Mao for the past two years has prepared his campaign against his enemies in great detail.

Lesser lights would be cast into the political shadows first. They included Peng Chen, the party secretary in Peking; Lu Ting-4, minister of culture; and Chou Yang, director of party propaganda.

Named recently by the People's Daily of Peking as arch-enemy of Maoism, Vice-Premier Peng Teh-hsiang, former Chinese space minister.

Red Flag, the Chinese Communist theoretical journal which is obviously under the control of Mao, called Peng a traitor and a wicked who headed an anti-party clique.

Far more important than all the names of the anti-Maoists are the specific accusations made by Red Flag against President Liu. He remains as yet the only "top party person in authority taking the capitalist road."

Although his name is still being omitted, his sins against Mao's doctrines are listed with unusual clarity.

In the Red Flag article, Liu emerges as a pragmatic Communist who, during and after the formation of the Chinese communes, voiced his doubts on whether the revolution was heading in the right direction.

Liu was against the extremes of the Great Leap, and felt that China gradually should work toward some kind of parliamentary system.

Just over 11 years ago, says Red Flag, on June 17, 1956, he told a group of foreigners in Peking: "It is no good regarding only our system as good and all others as unsatisfactory."

In 1957, he warned that there was no one political system that was absolutely good. "A vicious attack on socialism," commented Red Flag.

In 1961 and 1962, when peasants' right across China was blaming the party for the nation-wide food shortages, Liu pleaded for caution.

"Especially during the three years of temporary difficulties," says Red Flag, referring to the period between 1960 and 1962, "he ganged up with all kinds of monsters and demons in China and abroad."

The Chinese Communists are fond of patting themselves on the back with a favorite expression: "The situation is an excellent one." But Red Flag has Liu saying bluntly, during a speech at the 13th supreme state conference on March 21, 1961: "The situation is not an excellent one."

China's agricultural disasters eased somewhat after peasants were encouraged to work harder on their private plots, and some free markets were re-established.

Evidently this was President Liu's doing, because the Maoists have added these developments to his list of sins.

"He advocated the extension of private plots of land, of free markets and of enterprises with sole responsibilities for their own profits and losses," Red Flag said.

"He favored the firing of output quotas based on the individual household, and actively encouraged going it alone."

To Mao, Liu Shao-chi's line represented a betrayal of the Chinese revolution. To pursue realism, to push individualism, to discuss personal profits rather than gains for the collective were capitalist sins.

China's Khrushchev — one of the Middle East crisis is now reaching its crescendo in preparation for another international confrontation at the United Nations. Meanwhile the only direct dialogue going on between the principal parties involved — the Arabs and the Israelis — is the dialogue of guns sporadically breaking the ceasefire.

Formulas are being discussed in world capitals for a possible peaceful solution which would restore the vital commerce, production and development of the area. The difficulty is, however, that the very essence of any peace formula demands a certain element of compromise which neither side will admit that it is willing to make at this juncture.

Another difficulty is that while there are inherent weaknesses on both sides — internal politics, international relations, finances — each feels that it is able to bargain from a position of strength. That this is reality or illusion does not seem to have much bearing on the final outcome.

A stalemate has in fact been imposed by a combination of forces, mostly from outside the immediate area of conflict, which is causing a hardening of positions. Any indication either side of a willingness to compromise is being regarded as a sign of weakness or surrender.

With the apparently total incapability of the two sides to work out their deeply emotional and complex problems independently, it becomes increasingly apparent that those outside forces which have brought about the stalemate will have to be called upon to try to arrange a final settlement.

The Israelis appear boldly confident that they have gained the upper hand in bargaining through their blitzkrieg victory over exhausted Arab forces in June. However, all the land and treasure they now hold as bargaining pieces from that battle has not apparently given them the power to dictate the terms of a final settlement.

The Arabs must all down with them in direct negotiations on a final settlement if they wish to regain any of the lost treasure. And the Arabs have once again stubbornly rejected this demand.

If in the first day of desperation after the June war came to a halt there was even a slight indication that one or another of the Arab leaders might be inclined to negotiate some kind of settlement with the Israelis, that settlement has been swept away by the surprisingly concrete decision of the Arab leaders in Khartoum last month.

"No negotiation, no recognition, no peace," said one of the key resolutions passed by the Arab kings and presidents.

Such ringing phrases have been heard before but they have been backed by little real substance. This time they were accompanied by a much more realistic assessment of the means and capabilities still remaining in Arab hands. Old and bitter rivalries were buried for the moment at least, and the oil-rich Arabs agreed to subsidize the losses suffered by Egypt with the closure of the Suez Canal and by Jordan with the Israeli seizure of the Golan Heights and the old city of Jerusalem.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt has thus been freed once again to use the Suez Canal as the main Arab weapon in the bargaining to come, and King Hussein has been released from an immediately desperate need to deal his way out of disaster.

Thus the lines have hardened and it would appear that only the outside forces of the world — particularly the United States and the Soviet Union and perhaps the countries of the "third world" — have the possibility through statecraft and tough patience to settle the crisis. If these forces remain divided in their own bigger rivalries then the prospect of peace in the Middle East seems very dim indeed.

Bad Year for the Socreds

It's been another bad year for the national Social Credit party, which began the decade of the 60s with high promise.

The resignation Wednesday of R. A. Olson, member of Parliament for Medicine Hat, from the party follows by seven months the resignation of Robert Thompson as leader.

Both men made their moves with bitter words that reflected a serious erosion of the strength of the organization.

Mr. Thompson accused western provincial party organizations of falling down on financial support.

By KEN CLARK from Ottawa

The four Social Credit MPs left in the Commons, smallest party in the House, can look back on balmy days—and perhaps worse times, such as in 1956 when the party was wiped out in the Commons.

That was the year of the "Diefenbaker sweep," when the Conservative prime minister cut sharply into the strength of all other parties.

But Social Credit began rebuilding later with the help of an aggressive new leader, Mr. Thompson, who succeeded Solon Low in 1961.

In the federal election of the following year, Social Credit became national in scope for the first time with the election of 26 Quebec MPs. Up to that time, it had been a regional far western party.

With four western MPs, its total strength grew to 30 in the Commons. It was a potent force, which was soon dissipated.

Growing strains led to the split of the party into two groups, with most of the Quebec members forming a separate party under deputy leader Ral Casotte in 1964.

Disunited, both the breakaway Creditists and the western-based Social Credit group under Mr. Thompson, lost more ground in the 1965 election, setting the stage for further discord.

Olson Thinks—and for Himself

Canadian Press from Ottawa

Pasted in Bud Olson's scrapbook of press clippings is the saying:

"Think wrongly if you please, but in all cases think for yourself."

There is some evidence the 42-year-old member of Parliament thought entirely for himself in deciding to quit Social Credit and join the Liberals.

One close associate said Mr. Olson did not consult him about the move. It came as a surprise.

"He's a bit of a loner," the friend recalled. "And he has his own ideas of where he's going, which doesn't make him the best of team workers." Friends also say Horace Andrew Olson is a stable, hard-working, solid-citizen type, but politically ambitious as good politicians are.

"He's pretty strict with himself," one friend said. "If he makes a move, he thinks he's doing the right thing. But he also looks after himself politically."

The serious mind of the father of four—three girls, one boy—correctly suggests he's not much for belly-laugh humor.

Mr. Olson, born and brought up in the little Alberta community of Idlesleigh, took over the Social Credit seat of Medicine Hat in 1957.

He lost it to a Conservative in the 1958 Diefenbaker sweep but got it back in 1962 and has kept it ever since.

There are those who doubt he can keep the seat as a Liberal. The Liberal candidate ran a distant third to Mr. Olson in the 1965 election.

From the time he first entered the Commons at a youthful 31, he has been making a relentless questioner of government policies.

The mark of the man in judgment by the accolade of those who belong to other parties. Patrick Norrish, a Conservative MP, once listed Mr. Olson as one of the five best Commons debaters.

Douglas Fisher, a former NDP MP, last year nominated him as one of the five most effective members of the Commons.

Mr. Fisher linked Mr. Olson with Gerald Baldwin, Conservative MP for Peace River, as "steady-going apostles of common sense; their forte is analysis of legislation and ministerial statements."

There's no question Mr. Olson works hard outside the Commons, too, particularly on matters that affect his sprawling Southeastern Alberta riding.

From his performance of the last decade, he was clearly seeking a place in the sun. He tried and failed to unseat Robert Thompson as party leader at the 1965 convention.

When Mr. Thompson resigned anyway this year, the leadership mantle passed by Mr. Olson again. A. B. Patterson, MP for Fraser Valley, was named interim leader by the party's MPs.

Have you tried this happy marriage of flavour?

Can Gilbey's London Dry and ginger ale live happily together?

The answer is a blimfy yes.

Gilbey's London Dry has a perfect balance of flavour for all mixed gin drinks.

The flavour of some other gins is either too strong—or utterly tasteless.

But Gilbey's dry flavour has been an international favourite since 1873. Quite a long time.

Gilbey's London Dry lives in perfect harmony with the lively taste and effervescence of ginger ale.

Prove it to yourself. Tonight.

Nepal Slumbers in Twilight Zone But Space Age Knocks on Door

I am not surprised that so many hippies are trying to come to Nepal. Its scenery is stunningly beautiful, the pace of life gentle and soothing, modern civilization still only an intruder and the people are cheerful and welcome foreigners. Hashish is cheap, smoking is not illegal and at the Blue Tibetan bistro, one of the hippies' hangouts, you can eat—if your stomach can take it—a frying-pan full of liver and onions for 25 cents.

By HENRY BRANDON from Kathmandu, Nepal

What the hippie tribes are trying to create suddenly in San Francisco's Haight Ashbury is the normal life of the hippies. Even here the foreign hippies (or as they are often referred to, the "world travelers")—especially bearded ones who pretend to be Oriental mystics—are viewed by the authorities with suspicion and their visas are cut short. Maybe the Nepalese prefer their own genuine primitive culture or maybe it is because the "world travelers" usually arrive with a minimum of hard currency reserves. Alas, there simply is no more easy place to hide, and Haight Ashbury looks still more liberal-minded and less dysentery-prone.

What kept Nepal so insulated and so secure from invaders over the centuries were the formidable mountain barriers and the absence of roads. What kept it so primitive and the people free from xenophobia was that it never came under colonial rule. But it does not take long before one realizes that even this little innocent country has become a playground of power politics. Factories built by the Chinese and the Russians are pointed out here and there, a big school contributed by the Americans, and so on.

The biggest competition, though, is over road building. India built a daring road across the mountains to India. Russia is helping to build part of the east-west highway and China has just completed what is both a scenic and strategic road leading to the Tibetan border. I drove up to the first Chinese road maintenance camp. Mao pictures were strung around the camp like garlands.

However, with more tourists invading the country, more thought is being given to the problems of shutting them into the beautiful remote parts of the country by plane. An official pamphlet, trying to lure trekkers and reminding them they will need tent, timed food and some 10 different drugs from sulphaguanidin to water purifiers, is unlikely to attract the real spender. For the less adventurous like myself, though, there are the unnumberable deliriously carved temples, encounters with wild animals, great scenic beauty and of course the sight of the Himalayas.

The revolution of rising expectations has not yet hit Nepal, which is ruled by a near-absolute monarch. But the power contest, the effect of the various aid programs, budding tourism and the government's desire to raise the standard of life are forcing Nepal into the 20th century. Whether it can become an Asian Switzerland with neighbors so much more predatory remains to be seen. Only one thing is certain: There are no more Shangri-Las in this world.

French Build Up In Timeless Area

By FRANCIS KENT Los Angeles Times

Cape Kennedy it is not, but the French Space Centre going up near Cayenne, French Guiana, is no less impressive in its own way. Simply getting in and out of this remote part of the world takes an effort, and, once here, accomplishing anything beyond survival represents real achievement.

Undaunted, the French government last year started the monumental task of creating a sophisticated space research and operating base in an area that has been virtually untouched by time for four centuries.

By 1970, according to the schedule, missiles carrying satellites will be thundering up into space from what today is little more than swamp and jungle. "We will be ready on time," an official of the Central National d'Etudes Spatial declared, and his confidence was echoed by an American engineer representing a U.S. construction equipment firm.

The decision to locate here was taken after Algeria won its independence in 1962, obliging the French to abandon their bases in the Sahara desert. Nuclear testing facilities are being shifted to the Pacific and space activities are moving to this little possession of France, wedged between Brazil and Surinam on the Northern Atlantic coast of South America.

A number of factors pointed to Guiana, among them its location near the equator. This is considered ideal for putting satellites into equatorial orbits. Moreover, in the opinion of government officials, there is little possibility of an independence move developing here.

Before the space age, French Guiana was known chiefly in connection with Devil's Island, an infamous prison until early in the 20th Century.

Now, within sight of the island, alongside a time-blackened prison administration building, construction workers from a dozen countries sweat to meet project deadlines.

They have already filled and leveled acres of swamp and marshland. A Baltimore-built dredge works 19 hours a day, hauling out mud to reclaim still more acres. A power station has been built, together with a plant to purify water.

Thousands of tons of cement are being poured for launching pads, engine-testing areas, radar and telemetry installations, a weather station, radio transmitting and receiving facilities and a hotel.

The site is at Kourou, a sleepy village about 40 miles west of Cayenne that is home to perhaps 100 persons, mostly the descendants of slaves from Africa but including a handful of mine from French Guiana. There is a cluster of decrepit buildings that date back to the 18th century, structures of rotting timber, rusting corrugated iron and mouldering plaster. Chickens, goats and naked children scatter before passing trucks.

But within five years, said one of the new administrative staff, Kourou will be a modern city of 10,000 complete with most of the creature comforts that now are so far away.

What all this is to cost the French are not saying, but figures available at government offices in Cayenne offer a rough idea of the impact on French Guiana. The state's gross product, or sum of goods and services produced, is expected to triple by 1970.

Even that figure reflects only a fraction of how the space centre will affect life here. The 10,000 new residents, for example, will increase the population by more than 25 per cent from the present total of less than 40,000. Of these, almost 25,000 now live in Cayenne.

The activity at Kourou is already being felt in Cayenne, where a local official complained that rents are three times what they were a year ago.

Tight Security at Expo

Yugoslav Stresses Peace

MONTREAL (CP) — Yugoslav President Josip Broz Tito's emissary to Expo 67 received a cordial welcome Wednesday but was surrounded by the tightest security screen of any foreign leader seen at the world's fair since it opened in April.

Mika Spiljak, 51-year-old chief of Yugoslavia's federal executive council, stressed before an audience of 1,000 his country's adherence to peaceful co-existence and to its own independent brand of communism.

He spoke following flag-raising ceremonies marking Yugoslavia's National Day at Expo's Place des Nations, where he also inspected a guard of honor and heard his country's national anthem played by the band of the Royal Highlanders Regiment of Canada.

Four scarlet-uniformed officers stood on the platform, facing outward, as Mr. Spiljak spoke and scores of others were spotted

B.C. Ban on LSD Upheld by Court

VANCOUVER (CP) — Magistrate James Bartman Wednesday rejected a lawyer's bid to have British Columbia's new LSD legislation declared illegal.

He said LSD is a health hazard and ruled the legislation legal because health matters come under provincial jurisdiction.

Lawyer Sid Simons had applied to have an amendment to the B.C. Health Act thrown out. The amendment, passed at the last sitting of the legislature, makes possession of the hallucinatory drug illegal.

Mr. Simons is defending Helen Dawn Simpson, 29, Edith Shirley Mack, 32, and Francis Robert Lewis, 24, all charged with possession of LSD. Their cases were adjourned to Oct. 18 to fix a date for trial.

Magistrate Bartman said he based his decision on one by the Alberta Supreme Court, which ruled that Alberta could deal with LSD under its provincial law, as a health hazard.

"There is no doubt that any uncontrolled, indiscriminate use of hallucinatory drugs, including LSD, can be a health hazard," he said.

'Get Banks' Move Claimed Political

NEW YORK (CP) — The lawyer for Hal C. Banks charged Wednesday the effort to have his client extradited to Canada to face perjury charges is politically inspired.

"The word was 'get Banks,' and the word today still is 'get Banks,'" Abe Brodsky declared during a lengthy attack on the application to have Banks, one-time head of the Canadian Seafarers' International Union, turned over for trial in Ottawa.

U.S. Commissioner S. T. Abruzzo adjourned the hearing until 11:30 a.m. today after Richard Kuh, New York counsel for the Province of Ontario in the extradition case, had spent an hour filing pertinent documents and Brodsky had attacked the application for two hours.

The commissioner again refused an application for bail for Banks, 58, and he was returned to jail cells. All indications were that the heavy-set former union boss will spend many more days in jail here.

ATTACK CONTINUES

Today's session will be only three hours long because of other commitments by the commissioner, and Brodsky indicated he will spend most of that time continuing to attack the legality of the extradition application.

After adjournment Wednesday, the two lawyers agreed to present written briefs to the commissioner, before their final arguments, indicating there will be a considerable delay before a decision is reached.

Banks, a U.S. citizen, jumped bail of $25,000 three years ago while awaiting the outcome of his appeal against a 1964 conviction and five-year sentence for conspiring to beat up a rival union leader. The appeal was dismissed after Banks fled to the U.S.

The former union chief was arrested here last Aug. 29 and charged with perjury in connection with statements he made Jan. 9, 1963, before the Norris royal commission investigating violence on the Great Lakes. If extradited and convicted, he could be sentenced to a maximum of 14 years.

Curb on Strikes Held Lesser Evil

MONTREAL (CP) — Curbs on the right to strike are a lesser evil than widespread economic dislocation, H. J. Clawson, vice-president of the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., said Wednesday.

He told the 38th annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce that free collective bargaining and the right to strike are not ends in themselves, but have to meet the test of how much they contribute to the general good of the country.

Expressing concern about the number of strikes during the last two years, prospects of strikes by civil servants and the number of proposed settlements rejected by union members, Mr. Clawson said Canadians have a difficult choice involving labor disputes.

COUNTRY SUFFERS
"If they resist exorbitant collective bargaining demands, strikes will continue to increase and the country will suffer from the tremendous economic waste of a multiplicity of strikes."

"If settlements are made on union terms to buy labor peace, manufacturing, construction and service costs will continue to rise at an accelerated and unreasonably high rate."

"In either case, it will bring about a very serious deterioration in Canada's world as well as domestic competitive position."

OTHER MEANS
Mr. Clawson told the 300 delegates that if present trends continue and it becomes apparent collective bargaining is impeding economic growth, "then other means for regulating relations between labor and management will be sought and found."

He outlined four points which he said should be considered in seeking a remedy for the present labor situation:

- The federal government should refrain from passing any legislation which would enlarge the right to strike, especially during the life of a collective agreement;

- Penalties for unlawful strikes should be made tougher and enforced more vigorously;

- The government should ensure that qualified arbitrators are available;

- Consideration of making a written agreement, accepted by both management and union negotiating teams, binding on membership to overcome the problem of repudiation of settlements by workers.

Jubilee For Taxes

OTTAWA (CP)—Only a tax collector would think it an event worth celebrating, but Wednesday was the 50th anniversary of the introduction of the federal income tax.

And the revenue department's data processing centre marked the occasion by starting to put together the components of a new high-speed, big volume computer which will be used to double-check tax evaders.

It also celebrated the golden jubilee of income taxes with publication of a light-hearted review of the event for taxation division employees, and by passing around Chinese fortune cookies to the staff.

The precise significance of the cookies wasn't explained publicly.

The new IBM360-55 computer will double the capacity of the revenue department's taped files and speed the process of file searching by nine times.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Court action was launched Wednesday to nullify a decision last week to wind up the Bank of Western Canada.

The move was made by Canadian Finance and Investments Ltd. of Winnipeg, in whose name nearly 150,000 of the bank's 865,500 shares are registered, and brought about a new round in the battle between Montreal financier Marc Bliven and Toronto financier Sinclair Stevens.

Named as defendants in CFI's statement of claim, filed in Court of Queen's Bench, are the bank, York Lambton Corp. Ltd. of Toronto, British International Finance (Canada) Ltd. of Toronto, Mr. Bliven and his Montreal associates, Fernand Lalonde and Michel Latraverse.

PROXIES REFUSED

The claim declares that the defendants refused to accept the proper proxies of CFI and Mr. Stevens, as its representative, at a special shareholders' meeting Sept. 14 which voted to start proceedings to wind up the affairs of the bank.

It seeks an order declaring the meeting null and void.

The action came at the conclusion of an hour-long argument involving continuation of an interim injunction which prevented CFI from voting the shares at the windup meeting.

TO CONTINUE

Mr. Justice R. J. Matas ruled the interim injunction, granted to Bliven - controlled York Lambton, will continue pending resumption of the present hearing next Monday.

He said the adjournment will give the parties involved time to consider the CFI statement of claim.

A 50.1-per-cent controlling interest in the bank is held by Mr. Bliven through the control of BIF which he acquired from Mr. Stevens last March. BIF in turn controls York

Power Link Forged

U.S. Taps Canadian Water

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Western from Canada helped make possible the opening of an interstate Wednesday that will link electric power systems in the Pacific Northwest and Southwest.

When the electric system is finished in 1971, its conditions in California will get much of their power from the northwest's dams. And in the winter, the steam-powered plants in the southwest will help heat north-west homes.

The new power lines, part of the largest single electric power transmission project in the United States, will be able to carry twice as much electricity as produced by Grand Coulee Dam.

Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Western Montana are linked in the northwest power pool. California, Arizona and Nevada have a similar pooling arrangement. Parts of other states also are involved.

Under the Columbia River Treaty signed in 1964, the United States will get half of the money from power produced in its dams that comes from water spilling over the Canadian dams. The other half of the money will go to B.C.

The extra power is being added to the northwest's power pool.

And the "inside story" for 1968 starts with the biggest, smoothest V-8 engine ever put into a production motor car.

Brilliant new styling • Dramatic new interiors • Totally new instrument panel • Concealed windshield wipers • Improved variable ratio power steering • New disc brakes available • Wide choice of eleven exciting new body styles.

Now, enter a new era of luxury car performance—with the biggest and smoothest engine ever put into a production passenger car—the completely new Cadillac 472 V-8. three years ago. You will notice a brilliant improvement in passing performance that in no way compromises a huge reserve of power to operate all of Cadillac's usual power conveniences.

You will also be impressed with its amazing quiet—so remarkable that only its responsiveness reminds you that a great new engine lies under the hood.

Cadillac for 1968 provides, in addition, its well-proved triple braking system with finned drums that delivers smooth, straight stopping power. Front disc brakes are available for those who prefer the further refinement of an advanced disc-and-drum combination, and this year they're standard on Eldorado. You may also choose a greatly improved air conditioning system that moves more air more quietly.

There is a new instrument panel...windshield wipers that disappear when not in use...new brilliance of styling and interiors so beautiful and luxurious that they must be seen to be believed.

Sports Parade

By MILTON BUCHMAN.
NEW YORK (UPI) — Knute Rockne never would've made it in this day and age.
No coach ever exhorts his ball club to "fight, team, fight," anymore. Nowadays he tells all his players "relax, fellows, relax."
That goes for football, volleyball or basketball. It even goes for baseball where the St. Louis Cardinals won the National League pennant, they say, because they never paid any attention to the pressure.
"We're a loose ball club," says manager Red Schoendienst.
It must be so because other people on the Cardinals, like Orlando Cepeda, Roger Maris and Del Marvill say the same thing.
That in itself wouldn't exactly affect the national price of cotton, but now when you have someone like Al Kaline saying essentially the same thing about the Detroit Tigers there is always that chance it could affect, or even decide, the American League race.
"I thought there would be much more pressure than this," says Kaline. "Maybe the pressure will start mounting now, but I haven't found it too great yet."
How come he wasn't feeling it? Was he standing in a draft or something?
"No, nothing like that," laughs the 32-year-old Tiger right fielder. "Possibly it's because our ball club has been laying back third or fourth most of the year. All the press, radio and TV people have been talking more about the Twins, White Sox and Red Sox than they have about us. That could be the reason there hasn't been so much pressure."
There'll be more from here on in, right?
"Possibly but not positively," says Kaline. "We have a loose ball club, and a lotta guys on it we call 'balkey.' Then there are fellows like Norm Cash, Hank Aaron and Eddie Mathews, the older ones, who keep the other guys loose."
How loose?
"We laugh it up and pull a lotta jokes in the clubhouse. Willie Horton is a good example. He's tremendously afraid of any insects, bugs, snakes and things like that. Well, whenever we go on a road trip, Ray Oyler will go into a novelty shop and buy a rubber snake or an artificial bug and put it in Horton's shoe or inside his hat.
"Willie, you know, is a big, strong guy who could tear anybody apart if he ever got hold of him. When he sees these bugs or snakes he lets everything fly all over the place. He jumps about 10 feet away and he runs out of the clubhouse. It keeps everyone loose."
"You have no idea how much I'm enjoying all this," he says. "In past years, we were always out of the running and just putting in our time the last two weeks or so. Now it's different and I enjoy every day. This is the closest I've ever gotten to a World Series. I'm not gonna die if we don't make it but I think the Detroit Tigers are gonna win."
Kaline, among the league's leading hitters, is doing all he can to help.
One thing he isn't doing is alarming any bats around anymore.
"I doubt that will ever happen to me again," he says, referring to the broken thumb he suffered in late June when he angrily slammed his bat down on his finger after striking out.
"I still feel a little embarrassed about it. I don't usually get mad. It was just that one time. If I hadn't missed those five weeks ...
Don't worry about it, Al. It's these next two that really count."

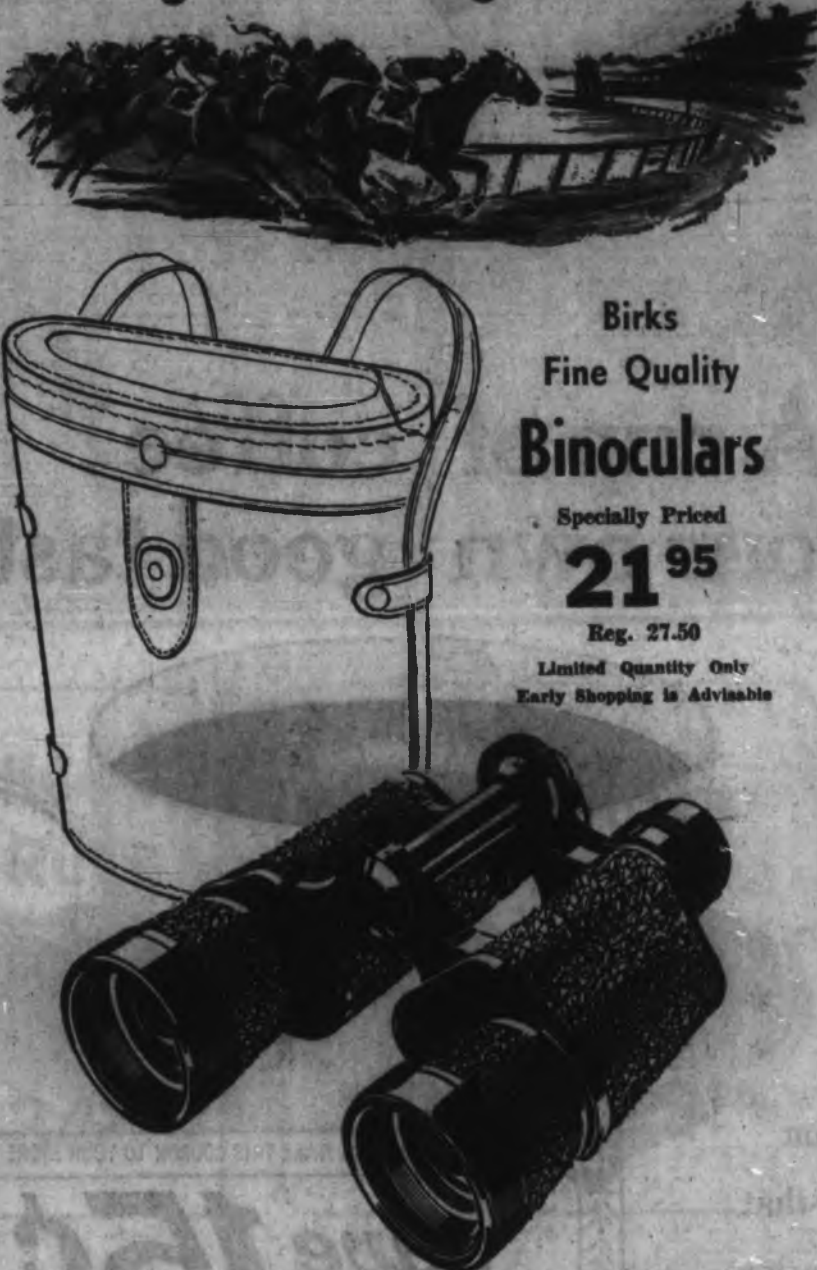

Croquet-Style Putters Banned by New Rules

NEW YORK (AP)—Straddle-style putting has been banned in a new worldwide code of golf rules to become effective Jan. 1.
The sole exception to uniformity between the United States Golf Association and the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, Scotland, is the size of the ball. The USGA still will use the larger ball.
The changes, proposed in May by negotiators of the two organizations and approved this week, also will call for speedier play on the greens by permitting a player to lift his ball for cleaning only before the first putt and also called for continuous putting. Both new rules were tested successfully in the last two U.S. Professional Golf Association and Masters tournaments.
In announcing the final action by the British ruling body, the USGA said it had received numerous protests about the changes in putting stances and in putters but decided to go ahead with the changes "to prevent it (golf) from being modified into another kind of game."
"Historically, golf always has been played with the player standing to one side of the extended line of putt, but recent alterations in putting styles and clubs have started a trend which, if not stopped, could have changed the nature of golf."
PROPER TERMINOLOGY
Specifically, the new rules for 1968 will provide:
"On the putting green, a player shall not make a stroke from astride with either foot touching the line of putt or an extension of that line behind the ball."
"Club shafts, including those for putters, must be designed to be straight from the top to a point not more than five inches above the sole; any neck or socket shall not be more than five inches long. The shaft in cross section shall be generally circular or, in a putter, otherwise symmetrical. The axis of a putter shaft shall diverge from the vertical by at least 10 degrees to obviate the croquet type putter."
PENALTY ELIMINATED
In longer amendment, there no longer will be a two-stroke penalty if a ball played from off the green within 30 yards of the hole strikes a fellow competitor's ball lying on the green. The penalty will apply only when both balls lay on the green before the stroke.
The new code will be in effect for at least four years. There will be continuous consultations between the two ruling bodies on the possibility of arriving at one size for the golf ball.

Argos Surprise Stampede

TORONTO (CP) — Fullback Jim Dillard lead a devastating ground attack Wednesday as Toronto Argonauts scored a 22-13 triumph over Calgary Stampede in a Canadian Football League interlocking game before 22,082 fans.
A former Stampeder, Dillard scored the first and last Toronto touchdowns and combined on Lovell Coleman and Frank Andruski collected Calgary touchdowns. Bill Goods converted one.

Toronto led 6-0, 7-0 and 14-6 by quarters.

Wally Gabler rested briefly in the second quarter while Tom Wilkinson made his CFL debut.

He sparked, directing a varied offense, eluding Calgary's rushers and passing accurately.
Gabler rolled out often to provide one more weapon to the Argonaut arsenal.

Toronto compiled 269 yards rushing and spoiled the defensive record of the Stampede, who had yielded an average of only eight points a game before Wednesday.

Lions' Trial For Halfback

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dave Pump, a recent out from San Francisco of the National Football League, has joined British Columbia Lions for a five-day trial, the Western Football Conference club announced Wednesday.

Pump, a six-foot one-inch, 165-pounder who can play either offensive or defensive halfback, won small college All-American honors when he played for Fresno State University in 1965.

Last year he played for San Diego Chargers of the American Football League and was traded to the Oilers this year.

Diverse Cultures Guarantee Communism Doomed Here

By BILL STAVDAL

Neither fascism nor communism could flourish in North America, believes lecturer and world traveller Donald Grant. "Communism has no chance," says the 77-year-old Highland Scot who lived for decades in central Europe before the war. And Canada's cultural diversity makes Nazi-type fascism unworkable, Mr. Grant declared here Wednesday.

LECTURE TOUR

With half a dozen careers behind him, Mr. Grant is now making his 12th extensive lecture tour of North America. Wednesday evening he addressed the Victoria branch of the English Speaking Union, of which he is a member.

On his stay here he visited a niece, Mrs. J. W. Brayshaw, 4555 Cordova Bay Road. The white-haired, still-busy traveller paused from chopping wood to reflect on his career.

STUDENT GROUP

A student of history and economics at the University of Edinburgh, he moved into relief work in Austria after the First World War. It was in Vienna that he helped found the World University Service, a student-aid group still operating.

Moving around Europe in the 20s and 30s, he and his wife Irene watched the growth of Nazism.

'ONE STATE'

"It was like a powerful religion," he recalled. "... One people, one state, one leader. The creed was to believe, to obey, to fight. The Nazi learned: 'You mustn't think with your mind; you must think with your blood.' The cult of race was the backbone of Nazism, said Mr. Grant. They had "a profound belief in race and tribe and their ancient past."

NOT SAME

But Canada has many ethnic groups which wouldn't provide the same fertile ground for fascism, Mr. Grant said. And he added a warning: "If people get careless, if they say politics is a dirty business, if they leave it to others, then the people who do care come to the top in committees and run things."

Oak Bay

Quake Plan Shaky

A tidal wave could inundate one-third of Oak Bay municipality, and civil defence coordinator G. O. White would like to see more residents ready to deal with such an emergency.

"We lie in a top-priority earthquake zone here, and one could strike at any moment," he said Wednesday.

Mr. White said that so far only six people have committed themselves for courses which include communications, first aid, police and warden training, and welfare training.

100 NEEDED

"We would be satisfied with 50, but would rather have 100 for the courses," he said.

"In the event of an emergency, Oak Bay High School would be our headquarters for the care of people, from provision of food to getting accommodation."

Mr. White said that over the past seven years some 400 people have taken the courses, and many have returned for re-training.

SHOULD RETURN

"They should come back every four years," he said.

"All our municipal workers have had the training," said Mr. White, "but we need more help."

He pointed out that many courses in home care, home nursing, and first aid are useful in everyday living.

He said applications were being taken at 385-8711.

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The provincial government will demand that municipalities use a standard tax bill showing the provincial share of school costs, Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said Wednesday.

The new form will replace the current system under which the municipalities issue tax notices that do not indicate contributions to school financing by senior governments, he told the 6th annual convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

FOR CLARITY

The object of the new forms "will be strictly public clarity," the minister said. "We insist that education costs will not become a political football in B.C."

"There is a greater need for public understanding of tax systems. Municipal councils often don't properly present taxation to the public."

Mr. Campbell said the standardized tax form will be recommended to the next session of the provincial legislature.

OWN BILLS

The form would be incorporated into the proposed statute and municipalities would have to print their own bills, without adding additional information, from the model.

The minister said municipalities could insert their own material on separate pieces of paper in the tax bill envelope.

Mr. Campbell also dismissed a proposal for a royal commission into local government taxation in B.C., similar to a probe completed recently in Ontario.

The minister said the Ontario study merely "calls for an increase in taxes. We don't need to raise taxes, we need to distribute them better."

In Victoria, Premier Bennett said Wednesday the provincial government hopes to pass legislation at the next session which would stipulate separate accounting for school and municipal costs on tax notices.

Mr. Bennett said the proposed invoices would list school taxes and then list the deduction of the provincial home-owner grant.

The bills would then list municipal taxes and if any was left over, applicable deductions of the remaining portion of the homeowner grant.

Following would be an aggregate tax total.

Casual Course Ending

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The casual approach to wages and fringe benefits in municipalities has about run its course, the executive director of the Union of B.C. Municipalities said Wednesday.

T. R. B. Adams told the UBCM's 6th convention that the Canadian Union of Public Employees has enjoyed growth even in the small centres of the province where unionism of public employees had been relatively unknown.

MORE AND MORE

"With this in mind, the UBCM office will be providing more and more research information and data to all of its member municipalities, regardless of size or number of employees, in a positive effort to adequately equip them for the tasks ahead posed by dealing with the unions," Mr. Adams said.

He warned delegates to remember that reduction of the work week from 40 hours to 37½ hours is equivalent to a pay rise of 6 2/3 per cent.

Next major negotiation year for municipalities and the CUPE is 1968.

"There is little doubt the union will be seeking increases," Mr. Adams said.

Rural-Mouthpiece Charge Repeated by Campbell

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) —

Vancouver Mayor Tom Campbell said Wednesday the Union of British Columbia Municipalities is a mouthpiece for rural municipalities because of unequal treatment given Vancouver.

He said in an interview at the 26th annual convention of the UBCM that the provincial government is maintaining a policy of furthering development in rural municipalities at the expense of Vancouver and the UBCM is unconcerned about it.

"There is a conflict of interest between Vancouver and these municipalities," he said. "The UBCM is a mouthpiece for the province."

"Vancouver doesn't get equal treatment on per capita grants, hydro rates, school grants, road grants or government representation."

Last week Mayor Campbell suggested that Vancouver withdraw from the UBCM because the city receives no benefits from it. Wednesday he said the UBCM should create a special category for the city and its metropolitan area.

Trail Mayor Joe Palyga reiterated earlier criticism of the mayor by members of Vancouver city council.

"He makes statements without too much thought," Mayor Palyga said. "We pay the same attention to this statement as we do to others by him."

Mayor Campbell also stated that the provincial government is rural-oriented.

"It is elected there and it is clever enough to know where its support lies and where favors should fall," he said.

The Greater Vancouver area should unite and fight its own battle to get equal treatment from the province because "the premier is a strong man who only appreciates strength," he said.

Courtroom Parade

Partnership Goal Dishonest Dollar

Two men who teamed up briefly and unsuccessfully to make a dishonest dollar pleaded guilty in central magistrate's court Wednesday to obtaining money under false pretences.

David Charette, 28, and Donald Gaudin, 25, both recent arrivals in Victoria and both of whom gave 44 San Jose as their address, were remanded to Sept. 28 for arraignment.

The evidence showed Charette purchased a sports jacket valued at $21.45 at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in Edson's, with a worthless cheque, and Gaudin tried to obtain a cash refund on the jacket half an hour later.

SECOND COUNT

Gaudin pleaded guilty to a second count on the same charge later before Magistrate William Orlor.

Court was told that this count arose from his obtaining $49 Sept. 8 from Salsbury Stores on Quadra in exchange for a worthless cheque.

The second charge was also remanded to Sept. 28.

A youth whose story Magistrate Orlor found "totally illogical" was fined $350 for driving while his license was under suspension.

Allen D. Knight, 21, of 385 Ouellet, pleaded guilty to the charge but said it occurred because he had fought with his fiancée, was planning a wedding and was in financial difficulties.

The evidence showed he had been sitting in his car on Vincent near Tillicum at 1:35 a.m. "Thinking" and had admitted to officers he had no license.

DROVE HOME

He was arrested shortly afterward as he drove to his home. He told court he thought it was all right for him to drive home after he had admitted he had no license.

The Crown said he had a lengthy record of driving offences and had had his license suspended three times in two years for having a bad driving record.

Paul Montanara of 840 Bay was fined $50 for causing a disturbance by swearing.

The evidence showed he had parked his car behind a city point truck at Douglas and View and had refused to move it. The car was removed by police while he was in a restaurant.

Montanara began abusing the city workmen in language Magistrate Orlor described as "abominable" and demanded his car be returned.

The incident occurred at 11:13 a.m. Wednesday.

Gerry W. Ouellet, 22, of 1192 Grant found himself going to jail for 74 days when Magistrate Orlor allowed him no time to pay a total of $150 in fines.

Magistrate Orlor said he had no option to allow time on charges of supplying liquor to a minor and consuming liquor in a public place, and he could see no reason why I should allow you time on the other."

Court was told he has been arrested July 4 in Courtenay on a hotel parking lot, drinking beer. More beer was found in a car and a minor admitted to drinking some, supplied by Ouellet.

The charge of causing a disturbance arose from an incident at Theda Lake Park Aug. 12, when Ouellet, was shouting, swearing, and leading a group of youths to fight.

Joseph E. Phillips, 30, of 1263 Penrose was fined a minimum $5 for operating a vehicle without displaying a license marking on its side, July 16 in Cowichan Bay.

Phillips pleaded guilty but said he thought it was only bonds over 14 feet that required license. He said he had tied his boat up immediately he was notified of the infraction.

Vancouver Keeps Its Name

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Vancouver, Wash., is going to keep its name.

In a Tuesday primary, residents of this Columbia River city of 25,000 voted six-to-one against a proposition aimed at clearing up confusion with Vancouver, B.C., 200 miles to the north.

Had the measure passed, the voters would have picked a new name in the November general election.

Backers of the name change bill favored Fort Vancouver, Garry A. Day, of Union Bay, 340; Frank Hansen of 436 Springfield, 335; Ronald Schiller of 1331 Sussex, 340.

Physician Jailed For Negligence

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Everly Eldon Rogers, 72, of Vancouver Wednesday was sentenced to one year in jail for criminal negligence.

Sentence was passed by Mr. Justice J. A. Macdonald of the British Columbia Supreme Court. Dr. Rogers was convicted last week by an all-male jury.

He was charged following the starvation death last year of 22-month-old Leonidas Demosten, testified during the trial that Rogers put his son on a low-protein diet of ground vegetables in April, 1966, in an attempt to cure a severe skin disease.

The boy ate little, was taken to hospital on June 9, 1966, and died two days later.

Rogers told the jury he had considered the child a terminal case from the moment he first saw him. He had tried to make the boy comfortable, while "hoping for a miracle."

The child's father, Aristides Demosten, testified during the trial that Rogers put his son on a low-protein diet of ground vegetables in April, 1966, in an attempt to cure a severe skin disease.

The boy ate little, was taken to hospital on June 9, 1966, and died two days later.

Rogers told the jury he had considered the child a terminal case from the moment he first saw him. He had tried to make the boy comfortable, while "hoping for a miracle."

Rogers, who holds a medical degree from McGill University, was removed from the rolls of practicing physicians in 1960 by the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons. He was struck off the Naturopathic Physicians Association register earlier this year.

Full-Time Education Chief Sought

For Trustee Arsenal

A resolution calling for a "full-time minister of education" will open the Greater Victoria School Board's campaign next month for a more militant B.C. School Trustees' Association.

A meeting of Greater Victoria trustees decided Wednesday to state their case as soon as a debate begins at the BCSTA convention in Vancouver Oct. 4-6.

The Greater Victoria board wants the BCSTA to play a more political role in shaping B.C. public education. Feeling here is that the 500-member trustees' group has generally been ignored by the department of education when it presents its annual list of resolutions.

TEA PARTY

"Unless we're prepared to politic a bit, it's going to remain that way," said board chairman Peter Bunn at an informal meeting called to decide action on upcoming resolutions.

The annual convention, he commented, is "a tea party." John Porteous, past chairman of the board, voiced his opinion that the BCSTA is not forceful enough in dealing with the provincial government. Quiet diplomacy is not having an effect in improving the status of education, he said.

FIRE YAKES

"They (trustees) seem to lose fire when they get on the executive," he remarked.

A reply to resolutions passed more than 11 months ago did not arrive from education minister Peterson until last week, after 1967 resolutions had been prepared.

"To me it's an insult," said Mr. Bunn Wednesday night.

FULL-THROTTLE

First on the convention's list of resolutions is Victoria's call for a full-time minister of education. Mr. Peterson is also minister of labor.

The four trustees present at Wednesday's meeting voiced opposition to another resolution by the BCSTA executive which urged the government to bar all teachers from sitting as school trustees.

NOT DEMOCRATIC

Les Karagiamas and Ted Wood agreed with Mr. Bunn and Mr. Porteous that the resolution is undemocratic.

The board will also sponsor resolutions calling for increased government participation in the cost of acquiring more parking space at schools, for school boards' representation on regional boards of health, and for all education funds to come from general revenue of the province.

Efficiency
Experts
Draw Fire

Efficiency experts at B.C. Forest Products are "sneaking around lumber piles... like Pinkettes of old," the Victoria Labor Council was told Wednesday night.

Murray Drew, president of the Victoria local of International Woodworkers of America, said the plywood plant's crew is refusing to work overtime until the experts go away.

"They have eliminated people from the work force and are requiring overtime," added Mr. Drew. "They watch you all day and make a report on you."

He said the minute the efficiency experts go into another B.C. Forest Products operation there will be a ban on overtime.

"I also suggest that if they get into the shipyards, overtime will be banned."

Resolutions Rap
Bill 43, Press

Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night endorsed eight resolutions which it will send to next month's British Columbia Federation of Labor convention in Vancouver.

They include protests of B.C.'s Bill 43, described as repugnant to the Canadian Bill of Rights, and a claim that the daily press is "using supposed news items to condition people to its way of thinking."

The VLC also wants a Hansard record of the legislature, a full-time labor minister and a government-appointed ombudsman. It asks the Canadian Labor Congress to send a task force to B.C. to organize the unorganized.

Kayak Class Lacking

Greater Victoria Centennial Society co-ordinator Jerry Gossley called Wednesday for more entries in the kayak and open classes in Saturday's centennial boat races on the Gorge.

The centennial office has received 26 entries in a canoe race but only five for a kayak court than I would have in any board appointed by the Social Credit government. Use your imagination as to who would be put on that board," he said. "They'd be defeated cabinet ministers and MLAs."

"Until there is a change of government in this province, I am not willing to transfer that responsibility from the courts."

"REASONABLE"

Mr. Perrault said he thought the Liberal proposals were "reasonable" and unions should realize "this regime (Social Credit) is not going to throw out injunctions in total."

It was "offensive" to his thinking that the courts would take evidence when a party to the dispute was not present, he explained. In such cases, it is "essential for the courts to exercise great care."

Mr. Perrault warned the unions that their goal of total abolition of injunctions "won't be productive."

PART OF BLAME

He told the unionists that they, along with management, must take part of the blame for Canada's inflation problems. Governments also have been imprudent with their spending, he said.

However, he pointed out that workers in British Columbia deserve more pay than those elsewhere in Canada because they are the most productive in the country.

Collective bargaining in this province is often a "crisis confrontation" with both sides oblivious to the public, he said. The Liberal leader also thought

Luxton Damage
Repaired
By 1968 Fair

The buildings of London Fall Fair will be ready for next year's event.

Construction will start in mid-November.

Fire swept through the grounds Aug. 19, causing damage estimated by officials at $7,800.

Howard Drummond, a spokesman for the fair, said Wednesday there was $9,000 insurance.

OFFERS GIVEN

"We had a number of offers to start a building fund after the fire," said Mr. Drummond. "We are hoping that those offers still hold good."

He said donations for the fund could be left at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce or the Royal Bank at Colwood Quay.

He said fair officials hoped to put up 10,000 square feet of exhibition buildings, using volunteer labor.

ANY DONATIONS

"Any donations of building materials would also be appreciated," he said.

Before the fire, the fairgrounds contained 11,400 square feet of exhibition space, but officials will be happy if they are able to raise 10,000 square feet.

THE DAILY BRITISH COLONIST

September 21, 1867

The harbor of Esquimalt presents a very fine appearance. Yesterday there were riding at anchor the following vessels: HMS Zenobia, Scout, Alert and Sparrowhawk and the gunboat Grappler; the telegraph ship Ernest and bark Palmiste; the Hawaiian ship Silas Greenman, and the Russian ship Shalekoff and off the entrance rode the British bark Australia.

The Delage Company engine has been put out of service for repairs which will require several days to complete. The engine was used in San Francisco in 1857, having belonged to VII Company of that city for a number of years.

Dog Poison
Not Strychnine

The SPCA has discounted the idea of strychnine poison being responsible for the death of one dog and the illness of another Saturday in James Bay.

Inspector Wes des Jardins said Wednesday that household chemicals were more likely to have poisoned the two animals.

"They had been spraying plastic paint cans and the dogs may have drunk water out of an empty can, or something of that nature," he said.

One dog owned by Theodore Ivanoski of 538 Rithet, died before it could be taken to hospital. Another, belonging to John Chabalewicz of the same address, is being treated by a veterinarian.

South Atlantic Trouble or Local Mischief?

Call for Help Found in Bottle

Saanich police are investigating a call for help purporting to come from someone shipwrecked on a small volcanic island in the South Atlantic.

The help message, scrawled in ink on a piece of weathered paper, was found inside a pop bottle that washed ashore at Cordova Bay. The finder, Mrs. Hugh Aylmer of 5064

Lochside, took the bottle and note to police.

Det. Sgt. Robin Stewart said the Pepsi Cola bottle had been corked with two small pieces of wood. There was salt water in the bottle when it was found.

Police technicians examined the almost obliterated message and reported it said: "Help, I am stranded at 20 degrees south latitude, 30 degrees west longitude."

There was no date on the message.

The only land in the vicinity given is Trinidad Island, a small volcanic island rising to about 2,000 feet. It is a Brazilian possession, located 700 miles east of Rio de Janeiro.

Its map location is 20 latitude, 29 degrees 20 minutes west longitude.

Sgt. Stewart said Thursday morning identification officers of Saanich police had reason to believe the message had been written on a "popscicle" wrapper.

"The paper was well eaten away," he said.

He said there were no marks on the bottle to indicate where the soft drink had been bottled.

But he said the department was not rushing to check out the measure, because even if it was authentic, it would be too late to rescue anyone. However, he said he intended to pass it on to proper authorities today.

Mrs. Aylmer, who spotted the bottle at the water's edge while walking her dog Monday, said she thought it was a "kid's thing."

"That's what I think it is, but I turned it in because you never know," she said.

Bennett Plans Standardized Notices

Tax Card to Tell All

Legislation to bring in standardized local tax notices for all B.C. residents is in the cards for the 1968 session, Premier Bennett indicated Wednesday.

He told a press conference that his remarks were merely adding to those made by Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell to the Union of B.C. Municipalities in Prince George.

SINGLE FORM

The premier said there may well be legislation at the next session which would provide for what he termed a "master" tax notice, setting out both school and general taxes as well as the homeowner grant on a single form.

Mr. Bennett suggested, in the form now being studied, the new tax notice would show the homeowner grant applied to school taxes. Anything in excess of the amount of school tax would be credited to the general taxes.

DIRECT AID

The whole idea being, he indicated, to make people more aware of how much the government was contributing in direct aid to local taxes. This question has bothered the government in the wake of renewed complaints at the last session that property owners were being overloaded.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: We have a 15-year-old son who is driving us crazy. It is his teeth and his hair. He ties up the family bathroom for one hour every morning while he brushes his teeth. But he flatly refuses to put a comb through his hair.

Here is his routine. He gets up, brushes his teeth for 20 minutes, eats breakfast, goes back to the bathroom and brushes his teeth again. Then he gets dressed. Before he leaves the house he returns to the bathroom a third time and brushes his teeth once more. "I'll the while his hair is matted and straggly and he says it doesn't bother him because 'nobody brushes their hair anymore.'"

What is wrong with this boy? Do you think he will grow up and act like a civilized man? WE'D LIKE THE BATHROOM

Dear W.L.T.B.: Yes. He'll probably meet a girl one of these days and then he'll tie up the bathroom for two hours.

In the meantime, for those second and third brushings, provide him with a jug of water and a basin and free up the bathroom for other members of the family.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an unwed mother who wrote to you two weeks ago and asked what I could do to get support money for my child. I am only 16 and I can't get a job.

Well, the situation has changed since I wrote. The father got married three days ago, but not to me. I went to the welfare agency as you suggested and they told me I could not get any support money out of Barney unless I can prove he is the father. If I say he is the father and he says he isn't the father, whose word are they going to take?

By the way, Barney just got out of the service and he doesn't have a job. The baby will be a year old next week and Barney hasn't given me one dime. What do I do now?—CONFUSED

Dear Confused: Since you are in touch with the welfare people, I suggest that you do as they tell you.

Do your kids look like the midnight shift at the coal mines when they get home?

Then you need the new anti-wishy-wash dial.

Wishy-washes are for sissies—they're just not tough enough for your kids. Inglis knows how dirty clothes can get so they put a unique Super Wash cycle into all their automatic washers.

The Inglis Super Wash cycle gives special attention to greasy, grimy and heavily-soiled fabrics. Here's how it works. You just set that special dial at "Super Wash" and leave the rest to Inglis. Before the regular wash cycle starts your clothes get a vigorous fast-action scrub for 6 minutes, followed by a 2 minute soak, then a partial drain to remove soil. Washer then refills to pre-selected level. This means the heavy grime is out of your clothes before the normal wash cycle begins. When the cycle is completed, those clothes are sparkling clean again.

The Inglis washer is also made for heavily-soiled, permanent press wash 'n' wear garments... you just combine the Super Wash cycle with the Wash 'n' Wear cycle. And that versatile Inglis dial has settings for every other kind of wash day problem too. Right from tough work clothes to delicate lingerie. The anti-wishy-wash dial—standard equipment on every Inglis automatic washer.

Farewell Nature Girl

Transformation
At Beauty School

By MAUREN DUFFUS

Here I am sitting here with all this gorgeous make-up — a new face, practically — and nobody has even noticed.

I acquired this new face at the Bay, at a beauty class given by Mary Smith Bell, and how anybody could NOT notice the turquoise eyelids I can't imagine.

It's quite a change from the original face au naturel.

Usually I manage to convince myself there's something attractively wholesome about the nature girl look, but after gazing at the original face for a long time then seeing the new look, I guess there's something to be said for camouflage.

Mary Smith Bell doesn't just demonstrate her products on a model. Her pupils have to pitch right in and work.

First you spend a lot of time taking off all the make-up attempts at camouflage you made at home. Not just a cold splash treatment either, but a complicated process of preparations applied in the proper way.

"Lift and work up, to lift the contours. Up, Up, Up."

Then you put on something else, I forget what, so it's a good thing we weren't asked to write an exam on what we learned.

The other pupils and I patted with our fingers, but Mary Smith Bell pointed out that it's possible to buy special patters, — for those with lazy fingers, I guess.

Then we sat in greasy meditation while our glamorous teacher explained all the other things that could be done with us in a real salon. We all sighed at the heavenly thought of a blissful week doing nothing but getting beautiful.

However, in a two-hour class, we had to ignore the dry hair, the split fingernails, the extra pounds, and concentrate on the face. Eventually the faces were ready (as ready as they'd ever be) for the camouflage.

Travelling
To Britain

The Tyndall Avenue home of Miss Linda Burkholder was the scene of a recent party held in honor of Miss Jean Rife who leaves shortly on an extended trip to Britain. The honor guest received yellow leather and chrysanthemum corsage and a travelling bag filled with gifts. A large "bon voyage" cake centred the refreshment table, which was decorated in fall tones. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. P. C. Henshaw and Mrs. A. Burkholder. Others invited were Mrs. J. Rife, Mrs. Alan Rife, Mrs. P. Henshaw, Mrs. R. Sturgeon, Mrs. Duncan Smith, Mrs. J. W. MacKenzie, Mrs. W. Van Leuden, Mrs. B. Dohm, Mrs. R. Holland, the Misses Anne, Ruth and Mathleen Rife, Helika Van Leuden and Beverly Webb.

I learned you don't just use cream and powder.

You use things like Velva Moisture film and Velled Radiance and Invisible Veil number something and Faint Blush — that's the one that's supposed to make you look as if you'd had a good night's sleep.

Then you get really artistic, with the eye make-up. I wavered a bit on the eyebrows which look a little squiggly, and absolutely flubbed the eye shadow.

If there had been a lower grade for the slow learners, I'd have been demoted right then, because instead of making a nice paste of the lovely turquoise blue stuff I made a thin watery mess of it.

However, teacher came to the rescue and painted me very nicely.

Then the piece de resistance, a lovely lipstick called "ge-anium" — just my bad luck I happened to be wearing a peachy apricot thing when the lipstick-of-the-day was rosy geranium.

Anyway, it's a nice change and I really do think I must spend a bit more time on the finer points of make-up. Mary Smith Bell says we can work up to splendid things like three shades of eye shadow, including silver; false eyelashes, turquoise eye liners, and silvery lipsticks, and become terribly voguish.

If you'd like to have a bash at creative make-up, Miss Smith Bell has classes today and tomorrow at 10 in the morning, 2 in the afternoon and 6:30 in the evening, at the Elizabeth Arden Red Door Salon in the Douglas Room of the Bay.

I do hope somebody notices the NEW ME soon — this work of art isn't guaranteed to last much longer!

Mr. Andrew Blaney and his bride, the former Karen Hewitt, pose for this formal picture following their recent marriage in St. John's Anglican Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. J. W. Hewitt, Westmount, Que., and the late Mrs. Hewitt, and the granddaughter of Mrs. J. W. Lennox, 1216 Rockland Avenue, and the late Dr. Lennox. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Blaney, 3245 Ripon Road.

New British Liner Joins Royal Family

CLYDEBANK, Scotland (CP) — The Queen Elizabeth II, Britain's new challenger for supremacy in the world's luxury ocean-liner service, slid smoothly into the River Clyde Wednesday and millions of Britons glowed with pride.

A hush fell over the 30,000 persons inside John Brown's Shipyard as the queen declared: "I name this ship Queen Elizabeth the Second."

CLOSE SECRET

The christening — the name of the heretofore designated Q4 was one of the most closely guarded secrets in Britain — was greeted with a tremendous roar of cheering, echoed seconds later by an estimated 100,000 persons outside the yard and thronging the banks of the Clyde.

The queen paused until the cheering died away and then continued in a voice filled with emotion:

"And may God bless her. May God bless her and all that sail in her."

RELEAFANT STARTER

Surrounded by members of the Royal Family, including Prince Philip and Princess Margaret, the queen pressed the launching button. For 2½ anxious minutes nothing happened, and then the giant liner slid down the slipway — perhaps the last of a great era of passenger ships.

Heavily backed financially by the British government, the huge vessel will cost $37,000,000 and weigh 58,000 tons by the time she enters the North Atlantic and holiday-cruise service 18 months hence.

HOPES PINNED

Cunard Steam-Ship Co. Ltd. is pinning its hopes on the Queen Elizabeth II. For years the proud liners Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth, built in the 1930s, have been plying the Atlantic — and in recent years losing thousands of pounds to trans-Atlantic airlines offering speedy jet service.

RESENTMENT?

The guessing game over the name of the new 936-foot-long liner ended with a longshot among bookmakers. Queen Elizabeth II was quoted as 14-to-1 odds Wednesday morning and the popular choice was Princess Margaret at 5 to 2.

Although there was pride in Britain's technological accomplishments in building the

Dishwasher

Deitergent Warning Revised

WASHINGTON (CP) — The manufacturer of a dishwasher detergent said to have blinded rabbits and killed rats in tests has agreed to carry a revised warning label on the package, says a spokesman for the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

The case is part of an FDA campaign to get manufacturers to improve the language and positioning of precautionary warnings on product packages.

The manufacturer is Economical Laboratory Inc., of St. Paul, Minn., and its product is electro-sol.

CASES REELED: Acting under the Hazardous Substances Act, the administration last week seized nine cases of electro-sol at Richmond, Va.

The Canadian Press reported erroneously the FDA had ordered the seizure of all the product on the market.

The electro-sol product is said by the FDA to contain a substance called sodium metasilicate which destroyed the vision of rabbits and killed up to 50 per cent of rats exposed to a solution of the detergent and water.

Queen Elizabeth II, there was some expression of Scottish resentment over the name of the new Cunarder.

Gordon Wilson, secretary of the Scottish National party, a home-rule group not represented in the British Parliament, said his Glasgow headquarters had been jammed with calls protesting the name Queen Elizabeth II.

LITTLE REGARD

"I think the name will be resented by a great number in Scotland, and shows little regard for the thousands of Scottish craftsmen who worked to create the ship," he said.

The point is that many Scots, not all of them nationalists, don't recognize the existence of a Queen Elizabeth II. They regard Elizabeth I as just an English monarch who reigned south of the border and died more than 100 years before the union of England and Scotland in 1707. They contend that makes the present monarch Elizabeth I of Scotland — no matter what the English call her.

Bennett Trip for 'Culture'

Premier Bennett leaves Friday on a three-week trip abroad that will take him to four countries in Europe. He flies first direct to London then travels to Belgium, Sweden and Finland before returning to British Columbia on the homebound journey.

Mr. Bennett described his journey as a "premier's mission." He added: "I'll discuss trade but this is to be more than a trade mission. I believe goodwill and understanding are the most important thing in the world today."

They'll travel home by air stopping for two days in Montreal where he is unofficially reported to be receiving an honorary degree from McGill University Oct. 11, returning to Victoria the following day.

Strachan Chided

Premier Supports Anti-Hippie Stand

Premier Bennett Wednesday defended Welfare Minister Campbell against charges by Opposition Leader Strachan that B.C. was in effect erecting immigration barriers.

Mr. Campbell earlier had announced hippies and other transients from out of the province who came to B.C. during the mild winter months cannot expect to be placed on provincial welfare rolls.

SKILL NEEDED
The provincial NDP leader said Mr. Campbell's announcement was tantamount to erecting provincial immigration barriers.

Mr. Bennett said "we want people to come to British Columbia providing they have skills and capital." But Mr. Bennett said he was amazed Mr. Strachan would

'Errand Boy' Label Agreed

EDMONTON (CP) — Accused of being an "errand boy" for Welfare Minister A. J. Hooke, a retired civil servant Wednesday told a judicial inquiry that, if the questioning counsel "wants to put it that way, I guess so."

J. H. Holloway, former holder of several civil service positions, said however, he had never attempted to curry favor with Mr. Hooke, but admitted friendship and said he tried to help him wherever possible.

IMPROPRIETY
The statements were made during an inquiry into allegations of impropriety against Mr. Hooke and E. W. Hinman, former provincial treasurer.

Gord Turcott, who served briefly as the NDP member for Pincher Creek-Crownest, alleged during the spring session that Mr. Hooke and Mr. Hinman used, or attempted to use, their public offices for personal gain.

The "errand boy" suggestion came from W. S. Gill, counsel for Mr. Turcott and Alberta NDP Leader Neil Reimer.

HIS JOBS
Mr. Holloway held posts as director of surveys for the department of public works, director of town planning, assistant clerk of the legislature, chairman of the Edmonton district planning commission, boundaries commissioner, chairman of the provincial parks board and public service commissioner. He retired from the latter post in 1965 and now is a partner in a private planning firm.

Earlier testimony indicated that it was Mr. Holloway who in 1963 drew and submitted the townsite plan for Campbellton, a residential area 10 miles east of Edmonton which eventually became known as Sherwood Park.

PLAN PREPARED
He said that although he was a civil servant at the time, he had prepared the plan for land developer John Campbell, incorporating 120 of 180 acres owned by Mr. Hooke.

At the time, Mr. Holloway was chairman of the district planning commission, the body which considered the plan he submitted.

The commission's approval of the townsite plan was a reversal of a decision taken 18 months previous.

NO MONEY
Mr. Holloway said he had neither asked for nor received compensation in any form for preparing the presentation for Mr. Campbell. He estimated the value of the work at $2,000 to $3,000.

He said he has done no work for Mr. Campbell for "at least private planer, he would probably consider it. He also said he Hooke. He said if asked to do so might not ask for pay since in his present capacity as a "they're friends of mine."

There are three million people around the world today who believe in the prophecies of the Bible and their fulfillment in our time. They call themselves Bahais.

AT THE GALLERY

By DINA D. D. UNTHOFF

Recently returned from Denmark and Spain, Flemming Jorgensen has brought back work of sparkling freshness and vigor. He has a current showing of drawings, etchings, line cuts, lithographs and monotypes at 1208 Wharf Street.

Though mostly small sketches, their content is far from being minor in character. He has the ability to summarize in a few powerful strokes the essentials with a rapidity that creates drawings of unusual force and penetration.

Take his witty Dances Against the Wind, the pure black pattern of the pedaling figures on their bicycles creates a rhythm that is unforgettable. In this small drawing there is material for almost unlimited enlargement. This, I think, is my favorite item. But coming a close second I would choose Village Malaga, a delightful understatement in lines and spots, an ink drawing of apparent simplicity but masterfully cunning.

In the monotypes, the finely handled color in Calle De Ilesia remains in one's mind, and in the lithographs Jerusalem takes an important place.

On the opening night of any exhibition of paintings, graphics and other art forms it is difficult to make a really comprehensive survey. One has to go back again and browse quietly to find the areas of importance that did not make the strongest impression at first but may have a great deal more to communicate when we study them again.

Flemming Jorgensen has already made a name for himself all the way across Canada and has been represented in many of the most important national shows.

His work in all media is characterized by enormous vitality. His watercolors, drawings in ink and charcoal, or brush and color bear his personal imprint. This exhibition continues through Oct. 5.

MEKONG CITY — Pope Paul has unfrocked Belgian-born Benedictine prior Gregoire Lemerle for ignoring a church order to stop psychoanalysis sessions at his monastery near here.

Centre Destined As Hall of Fame

ST. JOHN'S (CP) — Premier Smallwood announced Wednesday the new arts and culture centre here, the province's main centennial project, will become a "hall of fame" for Newfoundlanders who have won acclaim in the fields of arts and letters.

They include Robert Hayman, Newfoundland's first poet when he lived at Opquid in 1810, and E. J. Pratt, native Newfoundland-lander and one of Canada's best known poets.

Authors include Sir George Paisham, who wrote the first book of Newfoundland; Sir William Vaughan, Sir Richard Whitbourne, Lord Falkland, Newfoundland historian D. W. Prowse, J. P. Howley, who wrote the authoritative book on Newfoundland's now-extinct Redback Indians, and Sir Cavenish Boyle, who composed the national anthem of the island, the Ode to Newfoundland.

The '68 Buicks are here... and they're talking your language.

There's bound to be a '68 Buick that talks your language. Special-size Skylark is the most exciting new car of the year with its fresh, all-new Riviera-inspired styling, and speaks out boldly of low-priced luxury.

GS350, and GS400, Buick Special's high performance models, talk a performance language like you've never heard before and have all-new sporty styling to back it up.

The 1968 LeSabre says full-size Buick quality and luxury at a not-so-full-size price.

Wildcat—sleek and lovely and powerful—speaks of the open road and touring in the grand tradition.

Electra makes the luxury sounds.

Riviera talks a universal language of luxury, performance and style.

No matter what size or price range, there's a 1968 Buick which talks your language... fluently.

British Hospital Order Banned Patient Revival

LONDON (UPI) — For 16 months doctors and nurses at a London hospital were under orders to let patients over 65 die without trying to open chest heart massage or electrical stimulation, the health authority said today.

Health Minister Kenneth Robinson learned of the order Sept. 15, "was shocked" and ordered it cancelled immediately, spokesmen said.

"No harm was done during this time (the 16 months). The order was never put to the test," said the spokesmen for the ministry, which supervises Britain's nationalized health service.

The directive that was pinned to the Northwest London Hospital's bulletin board from May 16, 1966, until Friday was reported to have said:

"The following patients are not to be resuscitated:

- "Very elderly, over 65 years old.
- "Malignant disease.
- "Chronic chest disease.
- "Chronic renal (kidney) disease."

A patient spotted the order and told the British Broadcasting Corp., which aired the report. Dr. W. F. Twining McIlhenny, M.D., the hospital's chief physician, said he addressed the notice to doctors and nurses. He declined to make further comment.

The notice was said to have ordered that patients in the named categories should have a yellow card marked NTER — not to be resuscitated — in their records. If such a patient's heart stopped — a point of death in the medical sense — then no attempt would be made to revive him by open heart chest massage or electrical stimulation of the heart.

A British Medical Association spokesman said his group "could not possibly approve of the existence of any such rule."

"Any kind of decision on a patient must be taken by the individual doctor according to the individual circumstances of the case and not according to any blanket rule."

Prof. Glenville Williams of the Euthanasia Society said however, "It is right not to take unusual measures to resuscitate patients when they are very old or suffering badly."

A well known British Roman Catholic layman said, "It is a terrible slippery slope when you start to decide whether people are better off dead."

NDP Official Will Speak

The deputy leader of the New Democratic Party, David Lewis of Ottawa, will speak at the Union Centre on Quadra Street, at 8 p.m. Saturday. He is on a tour of the western provinces before returning east for the opening of Parliament.

'I Am a Canadian' Lesage Counters

GARTHEY, Que. (CP) — Jean Lesage, Quebec Liberal party leader, said Wednesday he is not a separatist.

He did not directly attack a speech made Monday night by Rene Levesque, in which his former welfare minister called for making Quebec a "sovereign state."

But countering the Levesque resolution, to be presented at a party convention Oct. 13, in which Quebec is seen as independent politically but tied to the rest of Canada through economie bonds, Mr. Lesage said: "I have the following resolution to make. It is that I am a Quebecer, proud of our Quebec, of a Quebec which I want to see attain the greatest possible degree of autonomy compatible with the existence of Canada, for I am a Canadian. I repeat, I am a Canadian."

Mr. Lesage called for a modified or new constitution, "which can guarantee Quebec the maximum of autonomy possible, or compatible, with the existence of Canada of which Quebec is a part in a federation."

School Strike Settled

NEW YORK (AP) — A mammoth strike of New York City public school teachers was settled tentatively Wednesday, bringing to an apparent end the worst labor crisis in the history of American education.

Albert Shanker, leader of the striking 40,000-member local of the AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers, said he expects regular school classes to begin Monday for 1,100,000 children.

Mayor John V. Lindsay announced the tentative settlement of the strike after a round-the-clock negotiating session that lasted more than 36 hours.

The strike began Sept. 11.

D. B. Maclean Rites Today

A private funeral service will be held today at Haywards for Donald Barratt Maclean, 1017 Craigdarroch, a native son of Victoria who died here Tuesday at the age of 62.

Surviving are his wife, Margaret, at home; one brother, Mr. Justice H. Alan Maclean of Vancouver; a nephew, Hugh Maclean of Montreal, and a niece, Mrs. P. Oakley of Courtenay.

Summer Leaving

Autumn begins officially at 10:30 a.m. Victoria time Saturday, when the sun passes over the equator on a southward course.

The event is called the autumnal equinox, a date when the day and night are of equal length.

Six months ago, on March 23, was the vernal or spring equinox, when the sun migrated over the equator to bring the long, warm summer that was.

Royal Shrug for New Jet

VANCOUVER (CP) — The world's biggest commercial jet airliner swept into Vancouver Wednesday night after a maiden flight — and earned a royal shrug.

The giant DC-8 super 61 — more than 187 feet long and with room for 196 passengers — was still warm from its flight from Toronto when Prince Michael Melkonen of Ethiopia, gave his verdict.

"It's just like any other plane I have flown in," said Emperor Haile Selassie's grandson. "I didn't notice any difference."

Prince Michael, who is to begin studies next week at Brentwood College, Mill Bay, flew economy class.

"I meet more people that way and it is better than seeing an old film in the first class that I have seen four times before," he said.

The new jet was put into service by Air Canada for the first time Wednesday. Six more are on order.

A crowd of Air Canada officials met the plane as it landed at Vancouver International Airport nearly 30 minutes late. Pilot Bill Steel said he had no trouble at all on the plane's maiden flight.

The plane is 37 feet longer than the original DC-8 and is capable of carrying 63 more passengers.

Garden Notes

Bulb-Planting Time

By M. V. CHESNUT

With bulb-planting time just around the corner, one's thoughts turn naturally to tulips, daffs and hyacinths. In the interest of greater variety in the garden, though, I'd like to get in a plug today for the tuberous Anemone, for this lively subject has many claims on it as a place in our gardens as part of our spring display.

Several of the species are ideal plants for growing in light or partial shade, where they seed themselves and become naturalized almost as well as our native Camassia. And our Dag's Tooth violet. Anemones are equally at home in the rock garden too, as their loose and informal character seems to blend better with the rugged rocks than a lot of the more commonly planted miniature bulbs.

The first of the family to bloom, hard on the heels of the snowdrops and the winter crocus, is Anemone blanda. In established colonies, this low-growing plant carpets the ground with a misty blue, but when the flowers are examined individually, quite a range of colors will be found, all the way from deep purple to pure white. One named variety, Scythica, has rich blue petals with a white reverse.

Anemone apennina is a brighter blue, and altogether a much more showy flower, although the plant is less compact and more straggling in habit. This one, too, is easy to naturalize, and if you let it go its own way, the colony will throw out flying columns which will advance, year by year, through and around your shrubs. Appennina's soft beauty, though, is so appealing you'll need a hard heart to deny the clump its encroachment.

There is no scarlet flower anywhere in the garden with a more vivid shade than Anemone fulgens, flowering in May. To be seen at its best, this one must have a sunny site — a spot approximating the thin, stony, sup-baked soil of its native Gapee and Asia Minor.

Almost everyone knows and loves the common Anemone coronaria — the one with flowers like poppies — which can be had in flower just about every month of the year. The best garden forms are St. Brigid, with semi-double flowers, and De Caen, bearing immense single blooms. Both of these groups come in a wide range of colors, from pink and white to scarlet and purple.

All of these kinds are grown from tubers which can be planted this fall; actually, the British commercial growers of cut-flower anemones plant in March, July, August and October to get a succession of blooms. Small bulbs, not much bigger than a garden pea, give the best flowers; the bigger bulbs, woody and knobby in appearance, are overage and will make feeble, thin-stemmed plants. Plant two inches deep and six inches apart.

This is also the season for setting out — in well lined soil — and Pulsatilla, a race very closely related to the anemones. This species includes the beloved Prairie "crocus," the official flower of Manitoba, perfectly at home in the harsh climate of Saskatchewan but difficult to get established here, probably because of our wet winters. Pulsatilla vulgaris does well here, though, and is a grander plant altogether, with silky purple flowers enshrining a golden centre.

Like the crocuses, the flowers come before the leaves, showing first on short stems in March. As the buds open, the stems grow longer, but it is not until they pass out of bloom that the delicate, fern-like foliage pushes up.

ART BUCHWALD and the Impresario

The Beauty of Ghetto Inc.

WASHINGTON — A friend of mine has just thought of a way to raise a large sum of money for poverty-stricken areas without one cent's cost to the taxpayer. He calls his program Ghetto Inc. and this is his explanation of how it works.

"From now until the presidential elections in 1968," my friend said, "ghettos are going to be the big thing and every politician running for public office is going to have to visit one. But most politicians don't know where to begin when it comes to touring the slums, and so Ghetto Inc. will make all the arrangements for them, for a fee, of course."

"What will you do?" "Well, let us suppose the person wishing to tour a ghetto area is one of the many thousands of presidential candidates who feel obligated to walk through a depressed area. Ghetto Inc.

would make out an itinerary for him. First, we'd have him visit a rat-infested tenement where he could be visibly shocked.

"Then we'd take him over to meet the parish priest who has just coached a little league team of deprived youngsters to a city championship. After that, we'd have him talk to an ex-convict who has gone straight and become a Good Humor man."

"Finally, we would arrange an interview with an unwed mother who has just lost her welfare payments. The candidate could or could not promise the woman he'd do something about it, depending on how he thinks the country feels at the time about unwed mothers."

"It sounds like a great service," I said. "How much does it cost?" "Well, that's just a simple tour, and with transportation and including the ex-convict and Good Humor truck, we charge $1,500."

"That's not expensive," I said.

"Of course, Ghetto Inc. has more luxurious tours. We can arrange for a candidate to walk through a garbage dump, have him photographed with a group of striking school teachers, let him cut the ribbon for a new playground and then lay the cornerstone for a low-cost housing development. The charge for this would be $10,000, and we'd supply the striking school teachers."

"You must be swamped with business," I said.

"Well, it's picking up nicely," my friend said. "Of course, the beauty of Ghetto Inc. is that we can service all candidates whether they're for or against the poverty program."

"How's that?" "Suppose you have a candidate who is against welfare, opposed to adding the poor, worse, unwed mothers, before the campaign is over."

"I could see a candidate asking for that kind of treatment, but where do you find the people to throw the rotten eggs and vegetables?"

"Oh, they're around, they're around."

"Well, I think it's a very noble experiment and I can't see how Ghetto Inc. can miss," I said.

"It can't. As a matter of fact, with so many people running for office in 1968, our only fear is that we may run out of ghettos — or even worse, unwed mothers, before the campaign is over."

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Sally Ann Sets the Date

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Sally Ann Hawes and Jeff Hunter have set the date. As soon as Sally Ann completes her starring role with Dick Van Dyke in Chitty Chitty Bang Bang and Jeff's divorce is final they will be married. Jeff, who suffered as Christ in Sam Brownson's King of Kings, is in London with Sally Ann. "He's the most marvelous man in the world," she confided in me, a remarkable statement from a woman in love.

Peter Fonda is getting more ambitious in the career department. He has been trying to buy a Diamond As Big As The Ritz from the Scott Fitzgerald estate — unsuccessfully to date. (It's a long long way from The Trip to The Ritz!) Otherwise, Peter would like to do a non-psychodelic picture with his acting family—father Henry and sister Jane.

Joan Collins with two children, or is it three, is planning a full-time return to her acting career. Right off the bat she will work with husband Tony Newley in his next film for 20th Century-Fox. You will know that Mrs. Joan Collins has forgiven Laurence Harvey his slight defection (some London dates with Pauline Stone) with the news that she is giving a gala supper and dance for him on his birthday, Sept. 30. His 38th, I believe.

Victor Berge was saying at the Rainbow Room, that when he came to the U.S. in 1940 from his native Denmark, he spoke not a word of English and was very poor. "I learned the language," he told me. "Watching B movies in second-rate theatres." Today, he could stay home save the money, and learn the lingo from those later afternoon B films on TV.

JACK SMITH Gets Clipped

Barber Shop Phobia

A psychiatrist and a psychologist, writing in the American Journal of Psychiatry, describe what they call barber shop phobia — a deep anxiety over getting a haircut.

Some men, they say, actually flee the barber shop before their turn comes. Others feel trapped in the barber's chair. Some find the barber shop chair all too reminiscent of the dentist's chair.

Some have an unconscious memory of being held in the chair by a mother, bursting into tears and trembling as a strange man came at them with his snarling electric clippers.

Victims of barber shop phobia, the doctors say, tend to let their hair grow long and unkempt, rather than face up to what they consider an ordeal.

It's possible that the phenomenon of long hair among our youth is not truly a fashion or a rebellion against society, but a mass outbreak of barber shop phobia.

This generation did not grow up when barber shops were a kind of men's club, a place men sought out to escape briefly the tensions of the office or the market place. Barber shops, to our youth, may simply mean a place their mothers made them go against their wills. I was a small boy when the barber shop was still in its heyday as a meeting place, a retreat, for the male. My father often took me to the shop he frequented, and it was a thrilling male experience.

Half the men in the row of waiting chairs against the wall were not for haircuts. They were there for fellowship. There was a lot of talk — about Babe Ruth, or Calvin Coolidge, or the stock market; and now and then, with an exchange of smiles and a furtive glance at me — about women.

It was the best on summer days when the big fans on the ceiling were turning. I would sit in a rickety chair that smelled of soap and tonics and cigar smoke. To me it was the wind of heaven.

Sometimes one of the men would make a really splendid score on a spittoon, and there was general applause.

During the baseball pennant race and the World Series, the barber shop was the centre of the man's world, there was always an Atwater Kent radio on a shelf, with a large horn, squawking out the play-by-play from New York, or St. Louis, as it came in by wireless.

Then the chairs would all be taken and men would be standing around against the walls and some would be leaning in the doorway. There would be great outbursts of cheering when word came of a home run, or a double play, and moments of tension and silence when the radio faded out.

What happened to the old barber shop? The speed of contemporary life, mainly, I suppose. But also network radio, color television, the instant replay, the little transistor on everybody's desk. Whatever is happening, we are always there. No need to go to the barber shop.

Today the barber in many of our more progressive shops doesn't call himself a barber at all. He is a hair stylist. His place is not a shop but a salon. There are no girls' calendars on his elegant walls, and no spittoon on his carpeted floor. There are no fans whirling overhead, humming any time you want them to; the salon is air conditioned. There is no strident call of the sports announcer, but soft music.

No wonder teen-agers have barber shop phobia. It's were a barber, I would go after the youths. I would keep my radio on a rock station — loud, and hire a couple of girls to dance. But then, I suppose, I'd wind up with barber shop phobia myself.

Cheery Diefenbaker Heads for Prairies

OTTAWA (CP)—"I'll be back in two or three weeks," John Diefenbaker said Wednesday night as he boarded the CNR Super-Continental for Saskatoon.

Dr. James Johnston, national director of the Conservative party, was the only party official to see him off at the Ottawa station. No MP was present.

Other train passengers in the station immediately recognized Mr. and Mrs. Diefenbaker in the station and several stopped to shake hands with them.

HOUSE-HUNTING
Mr. Diefenbaker told the two reporters on hand that he and his wife have started looking for a house in Ottawa but have found nothing yet.

When he returns to the capital, he will be staying in Stornoway, official home of opposition leaders, for only a day or two.

"Nearly everything is packed and we are ready to move," he said. The new Conservative leader, Robert Stanfield, is expected to move into Stornoway soon afterwards.

LAW SCHOOL REUNION
Mr. Diefenbaker will address a reunion of the University of Saskatchewan law school Saturday night before going to his home in Prince Albert.

Some of those attending will be judges he appointed while prime minister, he commented.

This started him reminiscing about old court battles he had participated in as a private lawyer and then about old political battles with the late Jimmy Gardiner, one-time premier of Saskatchewan and later federal agriculture minister.

He had arrived about 15 minutes before train time and spent a while in his automobile catching up on his late afternoon mail.

Then, cheery and bright-eyed, he climbed out of the car and began chatting with the few persons seeing him off, not missing a word while looking after the suitcases and checking his pockets for the train tickets.

As he walked alongside the train, passengers aboard waved to him through the windows. "You can't buy that," he said.

War Haters Block White House Way

About 500 women anti-war demonstrators broke through a wooden barricade opposite White House in Washington Wednesday, then sat down and blocked street beside executive mansion. Noisy action, ending with three arrested for disorderly conduct, followed their ignoring of ban against more than 100 pickets in area.—(AP)

Attlee Gravely Ill In London Hospital

LONDON (AP)—Earl Attlee, 84, former prime minister and architect of Britain's welfare state, was reported gravely ill Wednesday night in hospital.

He entered hospital 12 days ago with what was first described as a minor condition. A bulletin Wednesday morning said his condition had deteriorated and was causing concern.

Exotic Animals Dying As Owner Charged

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (LAT)—Hundreds of exotic animals found barely alive by humane society officers in two houses over the weekend are continuing to die despite all efforts to save them.

"I have never seen anything this bad," said Dale Kaufman, zoologist at Jungland where the Humane Society officers had taken the animals.

"BAD CASES"
"They are all suffering from malnutrition and dehydration. This just isn't something that happens in the past week."

But the owner of the animals, Donald Held, 45, denied he mistreated the animals and said he was a victim of "overzealous" Humane Society officer Glenn Zogg.

An additional 1,000 were found sick or dying in the houses. Zogg said the houses were coated with animal droppings and officers needed gas masks to enter.

IN ONE COURT
Held, an animal importer, was arraigned in one court on a felony charge of child neglect and at another court on two counts of cruelty to animals and two counts of allowing the carcasses of dead animals to remain within 100 feet of the roadway at both houses. He pleaded not guilty to all charges.

The child neglect stemmed from Held allowing his three children to live under such conditions. Held, who is divorced, said the houses weren't dirty "but they weren't as clean as if a woman had been there."

"FAIR LESS"
Held said he had "far less than 1,000 animals. Three came in dead on my last shipment from South America but that's all I know about."

He said, "It would not make sense to mistreat them if I had to make a living selling to pet shops and jobbers."

A YEAR AGO
He said he had been interested in animals for 45 years but had not been able to raise and care for them until a year ago when he became an importer.

Held, who claims to have a degree in zoology from the University of California at Davis, said, "I wanted to be a vet but other things got in the way until recently."

The animals taken to Jungland included turtles, alligators, squirrels, kangaroo rats, garter snakes, boa constrictors, birds, monkeys, iguanas and porcupines.

He is reviving most of the animals by giving them water and force-feeding them.

"When an animal has been without food for that long you have to force feed them to reactivate their stomachs. Those animals were nothing but skin and bones. They just were Jungland. "At the animal not fed."

Second Arab Group Agrees to Parley

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuters)—The second of South Arabia's rival nationalist organizations met a federal army deadline Tuesday night by announcing it is willing to co-operate with its Arabia.

The Egyptian-backed Front for the Liberation of Occupied South Yemen said it is willing to join the National Liberation Front in forming a caretaker government in South

Canada Given Cash Warning

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Governments at all levels will have to establish priorities so Canada can live within its means, delegates to the 64th annual convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities were told Wednesday at the opening session.

Resources Minister Williston said that for too long warnings are going to be most bumpy indeed, Mr. Williston said.

by the chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, John Deutsch, have been ignored.

He described Dr. Deutsch as "our economic traffic cop" and said the tendency was for the people of Canada to ignore the red lights he has been flashing.

He said requirements of the future will impose a tremendous expense upon municipalities, but this will have to be a carefully-imposed expense.

"We are going to have to effect some kind of priorities. We will have to decide, this we will have, and this we will have to wait for."

Freighter Marie Skou eases into port with her bow torn away. Part of missing bow can be seen inside gaping hole in Chitose Maru.

Two Foggy Collisions

Bashed Ships Safe

Puget Sound collision victims Fairland and Silver Shelton

Two ships which collided head-on at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait early Wednesday morning are tied up today for unloading and repairs along the Dallas Road waterfront.

The 8,000-ton Marie Skou, which lost her bow while ramming a hole about 40 by 60 feet in the No. 1 hold of the 40,000-ton Japanese ship Chitose Maru, is being unloaded at Ogden Point and may later go into Equimant graving dock for inspection.

The Japanese ship, which was heading toward the Vancouver area on her maiden voyage to load coal, is at Victoria Machinery Depot's Dallas Road plant, where repairs will probably be started today.

The collision was one of two major collisions which occurred Wednesday in fog-shrouded waters of the Pacific northwest. There were no injuries in either collision.

SHIP BEACHED

In the other collision, the 450-foot Fairland ripped a 25-foot gash in the hull of the 18,000-ton freighter Silver Shelton, in Puget Sound north of Seattle. The Fairland, which carries truck trailers, lost her bow. The Liberian registered Shelton was beached by a tug.

The Japanese registered Marie Skou was beached by a tug. The Japanese managed to raise the bow on the port side, near the bow, above water level by pumping ballast water from the double bottom tanks of the Chitose Maru.

CARGO TANK

The Marie Skou, with water in her No. 1 hold and No. 2 hold flooding, reached Ogden Point at noon.

The shipping agents were unable to confirm earlier reports that damage to the two ships is expected to run higher than $1,000,000.

Nigeria Splintered

Shells Chase New Rebels

LAGOS (Reuters) — Nigeria's federal government Wednesday claimed its troops have entered the city of Benin in the Midwestern Region, only a few hours after a radio broadcast declared the region an independent republic.

A federal government military spokesman said government troops began shelling Benin in the afternoon and marched in two hours later. Troops from the Eastern Region, which now calls itself the independent republic of Biafra, appeared to have withdrawn to the east, the spokesman said.

Israeli Tank Claims Three Patrol Boats

From UPI

Israel reported that one of its tanks on the east bank of the Suez Canal sank three Egyptian patrol boats on the southern reaches of the waterway Wednesday. Israel claimed the presence of the Egyptian vessels violated an agreement by the United Nations. (See also page 2)

Egypt denied that any of its ships were in the canal and accused Israeli forces of shelling the city of Suez and Port Toudia in two separate bombardments, killing four civilians and wounding 11.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Hurricane Beulah, one of the mightiest storms in history, slashed multi-million-dollar destruction into the lower Texas Coast Wednesday. The storm continued to spread death and havoc into the night.

Beulah did her worst at Port Isabel and Brownsville before dawn, coming ashore with 160-mile-an-hour winds at her center. Wednesday night she continued to flay coastal areas with hurricane winds.

The death toll stood at 29 in Beulah's 12th day of life.

Tornadoes spun off the big storm in record numbers. The Texas department of public safety counted 27 Wednesday—a record by 10 and Beulah showed no signs that she was near death.

CORPUS CHRISTI HIT

Hurricane winds hit Corpus Christi, 160 miles from here, before sundown and continued into the late evening. Tornadoes also continued to develop. One spun near Corpus Christi in the late evening and another was started 250 miles to the north.

State disaster planning officials warned persons in the south Texas coastal plains to remain in shelters.

TEGONS IN STREETS

There were no reports of looting but downtown Brownsville was barricaded and the business district was patrolled by armed troops.

There was more damage in Mexico, across the Rio Grande River from here. How extensive it was, and whether there were any casualties, was not known immediately.

The little ranch settlements of Santa and Riviera south of Corpus Christi were pounded by 90-mile-an-hour winds. Wednesday evening winds up to 78 miles an hour slashed at Corpus Christi after a day of gales. Hurricane force begins at 73 m.p.h.

POWER OUT

Damage was widespread. Entire communities were isolated.

Electric power was cut off to almost all the storm-hit region. Some evacuees began leaving for their homes but Red Cross officials at Brownsville warned of dangerous flooding, tornadoes from the still mighty storm and downed power lines. Food was running short in the Brownsville shelters.

DEATH SENTENCE

Red Cross officials in Brownsville said it would be several days before the damage could be estimated at this tip-of-Texas city.

Weathermen said Beulah would continue to move inland, a death sentence even for a storm of her power.

Terse reports from highway patrol units began to come into

Montreal Tied Up

MONTREAL (CP) — Public transportation in Montreal came to a halt early today as thousands of Montreal Transportation Commission employees voted at a mass meeting to strike immediately for higher pay.

Hippies 'Lazy Louts'

VANCOUVER (CP) — P. A. Gagliardi, British Columbia's colorful highways minister, just about blew the hippies out of the province Wednesday night with sheer lung power.

Speaking at the top of his voice to a service club dinner meeting, he called them "lazy, long-haired louts," who should start contributing something to society.

"I'm going to speak out against these dirty, long-haired people who go down the streets in smelly clothes, waving their dirty locks in the air."

National Soecreds 'Dead' Member Crosses Floor

OTTAWA (CP) — H. A. Soecreds, quit Social Credit Union, claiming a tender con-

The 42-year-old MP for Medicine Hat, Alberta, told a press conference:

"From my observations, the leaders of the Social Credit League of Alberta will continue to pursue the course of seeking an accommodation or 'marriage' with the Progressive Conservative party."

'DELIGHTED'

"My convictions and conscience, in keeping with the commitments I have made to the people of my constituency, prohibit me from endorsing or supporting this course."

A spokesman said Mr. Pearson's comment on the Olson step was:

"I am delighted."

Acceptance of Mr. Olson's application, to be discussed at a weekend caucus of Liberal MPs and Senators, would boost the minority government's support.

Bennett:

But Why Join Fuzzy Liberals?

The defection of an Alberta Soecreds MP to the ranks of the Liberals won't change the party either federally or provincially in B.C., Premier Bennett said Wednesday.

The premier played down the possible effects of the decision by H. A. Soecreds of Medicine Hat on the Soecreds organization in this province.

Mr. Olson's announcement has been blamed on Alberta Premier Manning's booklet entitled "Political Realignment" which proposed national Soecreds merge with Tories.

Mr. Bennett continued to sidestep direct answers to questions about his views on the book. He simply said it was well written and expressed a view to which Mr. Manning was fully entitled.

Of Mr. Olson's decision the premier said: "Everybody is entitled to make his own choice... but I don't know how anybody could join that fuzzy Liberal party."

Mr. Bennett said the latest development should not damage the B.C. "on-to-Ottawa" drive in the next federal election.

"What we need are MPs, more than the three we have now, who will speak not for this government but for the people

Commons Dilemma Would Vanish

Senator John D 'Decent Thing to Do'

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — There is talk — and in the most influential Liberal circles too — that Prime Minister Pearson might appoint former Conservative leader Diefenbaker to the Senate. (See also Page 4.)

"It would solve Dief's dilemma," suggested a leading member of the Pearson

cabinet to a pair of reporters who paused Wednesday at his table in the parliamentary cafeteria to exchange the current gossip-of-the-day.

The Diefenbaker dilemma is that while, after 27 years in Parliament, he prides himself in being what he calls, "a House of Commons man," he has said it wouldn't be proper for him to take his place on the backbenches now as private MP for Prince Albert.

He has spoken of the possible difficulties or even a "barrage" that his presence in the Commons might cause Conservative leader Robert Stanfield.

He has talked too, of getting to work on his memoirs, complaining that he can't get started until the government provides him with "adequate" staff.

And he can't secure that staff unless he remains in Parliament.

So, suggests this Liberal cabinet minister who is busy circulating the possibility of the appointment, the Senate is the way out of the difficulty.

"It would be popular — you'd be surprised just how popular — with the public," argues the Liberal front-bencher. "The PM would get the same kind of high marks people gave him when he appointed Roly Michener, the beaten Conservative Commons speaker) first as high commissioner to India and then as governor-general."

It would be considered by Canadians generally, he went on, as "the right thing, the decent thing to do."

This reason or motive for sending the former "Chief" to the Senate, was apart altogether from the fact that Diefenbaker with all those Parliamentary years behind him, would be what is usually

Housewife Writes A Happy Ending

FIRST-CLASS CITIZEN: Every once in a while this paper carries a story about a family which has been burned out and left without a stitch of clothing. Funds are driven get started, but then what happens?

If you feel like a lift today, read how Mrs. Sherman White reacted to a fire three weeks ago.

Mrs. White says she "was near tears trying to figure out how to make my budget stretch to provide six back-to-school outfits when I heard about the fire that destroyed the Norman Williams home on the Colles Bay Indian Reserve."

"Right away I realized there were folks a lot worse off than me, so I phoned the chief and said I would organize a fund for the family and also run a clothing drive."

The fund now is at $1,134, with a few donations still arriving. About half that came from Mr. Williams' co-workers and the management at B.C. Forest Products. The response to the request for clothing was so good the family's needs were filled in two days, and in just one more day they had all the furniture they needed. To cap it all, the department of Indian Affairs and the fund came up with help and a new house will be going up soon.

The basic drive came from one housewife who just decided to help. That's today's happy story.

RUNAWAY SUCCESS: The Western Association of Art Museums is meeting for the first time in Canada, and chose Vancouver.

Before coming to B.C. delegates were asked by mail if they would like a sidetrip to Victoria to see the gallery, the Maltwood Museum and the Butchart Gardens. Only 20 said "yes."

After a few days in Vancouver, the charm of Victoria must have looked good to the art types.

Will Moore, deputy director of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, stood up at the convention, saying for Colin Graham who is convalescing, and asked just how many people wanted to make the trip. He was mobbed.

That's why the entire convention will move here Saturday for a buffet lunch at the gallery and then a tour.

EXTRA ART NOTE: The current exhibition of Japanese art is attracting so much attention that Prof. Michael Sullivan came up from California to look over the show.

The current exhibition of Japanese art is attracting so much attention that Prof. Michael Sullivan came up from California to look over the show.

Mr. Sullivan, a world-renowned expert on Oriental art, looked over the gallery's collection of pottery and gave the staff a pleasant surprise. He told them one item that had caused some concern was not an 18th-century pot but a much more valuable 12th-century item.

This Japanese show is one of the greatest of its kind. Put it on the must list.

SORRY, PETER BUNN: The night school course offering the pupil secrets of decorating pottery with vulgar inscriptions did not originate with the Greater Victoria School Board. The honor goes to School District 62.

MORE FUN COMING: On Sunday in my music column I said there was plenty to do in Victoria and there was a list of some of the scheduled items. Here are two extras that seem certain to play here soon.

Metro Theatre of Vancouver will offer Irma La Douce with orchestra in October, and Rod Harris will be back for the last two days of October.

BOTTLENECK: It's about time the city fathers gave some thought to the jam-up outside the Government Street liquor store.

You have to be crazy or drunk, or both, to drive in that area on Friday or Saturday nights.

This is one of the city's class A foul-up areas, so why not do something for the patrons?

NO HIGH TIDES

Fearful high tides of 10 to 15 feet at Corpus Christi failed to develop. Fifteen feet would have put the sea a foot over the protecting seawall.

Gordon Baxter of radio station KTRM in Beaumont and Mike Simpson of station KGBT-TV in Harlingen reached Port Isabel while the hurricane remained strong.

"The town was 50 per cent destroyed and 100 per cent damaged in the true sense of the word, homes and businesses," said Baxter. "Telephone poles not only were knocked down—they were broken in two and three places."

BUSINESS GONE

"A waterfront business was levelled and stacked at the base of the old highhouse."

"A brick motel was scattered so much it looked like a kid's building blocks that he had tired of and scattered. The police station was blown out and abandoned."

"One area was damaged so much you couldn't tell where the buildings were and where the street was supposed to be."

"The town looked as if there had been saturation bombing."

CAR BLOWN AWAY

Simpson's automobile was blown off the road twice and Baxter had to pull him free the second time.

An estimated 30,000 persons fled ahead of the storm.

The U.S. Coast Guard esti-

The coast guard said another four shrimpers operating in bays and worth $10,000 each were swamped.

Rapid Advances Being Made In Gout Treatment Methods

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you please explain gout and uric acid? I'm sure they go together, but I would like to know the cause and cure, if any. You explain things in your column so the untrained person can understand it. — L.B.

Thank you. That's what I try to do — explain things. When my TV set won't work, I don't want the repairman to give me the history of cathode ray tubes. I just want to know what ought to be done to fix the set, and, if possible, I want to know how I should treat the machine so it will keep working. People are entitled to the same type of answers concerning health.

Yes, you are right about uric acid. If too much accumulates in the system, it gathers in the form of uric crystals in the joints and elsewhere, and then you have the exquisite pain of gouty arthritis.

Why some people accumulate uric acid and others get rid of it in sufficient quantities is not completely understood even by the authorities on metabolism.

However, we don't have to know all the "whys" to treat gout successfully. Colchicine (and some other drugs) are effective in stopping an acute attack.

To prevent future attacks, we have to find some way of preventing this buildup of uric acid. Diet helps some, but the big advance has come roughly in the last dozen years: discovery of uricostatic drugs—medications which help the body discharge uric acid.

acid. Diet helps some, but the big advance has come roughly in the last dozen years: discovery of uricostatic drugs—medications which help the body discharge uric acid.

RULES FOR DRUGS

This isn't a "cure." One has to keep on taking the drugs (in very small quantities, however) for life. There are well-established rules by now as to just how these drugs should be taken. They should NOT be used in combination with some other drugs. There are distinct drawbacks if a patient takes the drugs for a time, then stops and subsequently starts them again.

Unhappily, many people with gout are not aware of the rapid advancement in treatment in the last few years. Once proper treatment has been established, the cruel misery of gout can be used to know it can be brought to an end.

Senator

called "an ornament" in the red chamber.

The former prime minister has never made any great gains in the Senate in the years since he entered Parliament in 1940, so there would be no embarrassment, personally, in having to swallow any of his words — an experience suffered by Liberal Senator Hazen Argue who for years raged against the upper chamber.

North Wellington

Asks for $15,000

NANAIMO—The school board here has flatly refused a charge of $15,000, which North Wellington suggests would be the hookup fee for sewerage for a junior high school.

The first hookup fee mentioned to the school board was $35,000. Now it has dropped by more than half. But that's not enough for the school board.

Trustees considered the situation at Wednesday night's school board meeting.

Board Chairman Bill Lerch said "As far as I'm concerned, they are not getting their $15,000."

The hookup is a normal one to six-inch pipe for the new Wellington Junior Secondary School, which will accommodate 300 students at first.

The charge, as far as Mr. Lerch could determine, was based on the estimate of $35,000 for the board to build its own system.

School engineers estimated the cost to be only $25,000, at which time the charge was dropped to $15,000.

The North Wellington Waterworks District had debenture payments coming due in January totalling a reported $15,000.

Negotiation between the board and the district have not been passed by the board, but one phrase accepted by the water district, on recommendation by the school board, says no future hookup charges aside from normal connection fee of a few hundred dollars will be assessed for any other school.

The average hookup fee has been $300 in the past, estimated engineer Jim Thrope.

Scholarships Unused

Students' Path Blocked

By JEAN MacGREGOR

LAKE COWICHAN—Several scholarships and bursaries here are being withheld because students are having trouble registering at higher education institutes, especially on the Mainland.

Lake Cowichan Secondary School principal Oscar Palsom commented, "It is becoming more difficult for out-of-town students to get into higher education institutes for specific courses such as vocational programs and art courses."

He cited as an example two girls at the school, both of whom are good students, who tried to register at the Vancouver Art School.

Told to Wait

"They were told to wait for cancellations from in-town students, but none were forthcoming."

"Both girls are good students, and they are now trying to enroll at a local university, but of course they will now be among the last to register and may run into difficulty."

The awards gathering last June included the IODE bursary and two scholarships from Hillcrest Lumber Co., one of which will go to a female student.

The latest graduating class from the school can perhaps be described as a promising lot.

Few Failures

Mr. Palsom said "We are waiting for the results of these students who are completing one subject each through correspondence courses — they are expected to pass."

In the government examinations — those tests which throw doubt into the heart of every student — there were only three failures from grade 12.

These were in mathematics, in which 11 out of 13 students passed, and in chemistry, where four out of five passed.

Other subject results included: literature, where three out of 11 students were recommended and the other eight passed;

History, three out of six students were recommended.

Unique Case

One Lake Cowichan student who will attend university this year is 16-year-old Linda Parham, who enters Simon Fraser University this month.

Linda's admission to the university is unique. She has just completed grade 11 and has not graduated from secondary school.

However her marks have been excellent with her report card showing mostly "A's". Linda had become bored with school and was even anticipating leaving.

Knowing her excellent academic record, the school counsellor, George Boechler, suggested the possibility of skipping Grade 12 and going directly to university.

He contacted the registrar at Simon Fraser University and sent a record of her marks.

It is only during the last three years it has been possible to skip a university in B.C. without a high school graduation.

Simon Fraser is the exception. There are only a limited number of students able to take advantage of this opportunity, and Linda with her outstanding record is one. She intends to teach philosophy at university level.

Sound of South Pacific Will Roll Over Duncan

DUNCAN — About 60 people have attended the first general meeting of the Duncan Musical Club in preparation of this year's production of South Pacific.

Club members felt the turnout indicated high interest for the stage show.

Rehearsals start this Friday at St. Peter's Church Hall, Quamichan. Everyone is welcome to try out for parts.

UNITED CHURCH

The following Friday, Sept. 29, more auditions will be held in the Duncan United Church Hall.

Rehearsals start Oct. 6 at the United Church Hall.

ROGEE ON STAGE

Drama director this year is Roger Desprez, of Nanaimo, well known in the area from past productions.

Musical director Ted Stannard is new to the musical club, but is well known in band circles in Duncan. He is bandmaster of the Cowichan Secondary School Band.

Production manager is Mrs. Anne Murray, who is most anxious to get an assistant.

Stage manager Win Lewis has asked volunteers to help immediately in stage construction.

Both Mr. Desprez and Mr. Stannard emphasized there are many acting parts in this year's production. Interested persons do not necessarily have to have a musical background to take part.

Cassidy Boy Admits Theft

Bear Down

NANAIMO — Gordon Rock has finally caught up with Nanaimo's garbage dumping bear.

"We'll hang the carcass for a few days, and anybody who wants some meat is welcome to it," he said.

The 200-pound bear was seen in the area upsetting garbage bins and searching for scraps.

LADYSMITH — Jack Willes Carmichael, 19, of Cassidy, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering with intent to steal, when he appeared in magistrate's court Tuesday.

Carmichael and a companion were caught by police within minutes after breaking into the Royal Canadian Legion at Ladysmith Aug. 30.

The accused was given a two-year suspended sentence with a bond of $1,000.

Carmichael also pleaded guilty to two counts of wilful damage. He was fined $25 on each count and ordered to make restitution.

Police said Carmichael had damaged a light switch, the property of the city of Ladysmith, and ripped a blanket belonging to the RCMP.

His companion, James Jasper Sharenowski, 18, also of Cassidy, received a two-year suspended sentence and $1,000 bond.

Sharenowski also pleaded guilty to two charges laid the night before the burglary at the Legion.

He was fined $35 for driving without due care and attention, after driving erratically through the city and over a lawn. He was fined a further $25 for failing to produce a driver's licence.

He continued, "The companies for years have felt they have the divine right to interpret the order in council passed in recent years, governing preparatory work on Saturday in pigging operations."

"The time is long overdue for the union to place their interpretation on this order in council and let the chips fall where they may."

'Indians Need Reserve Life'

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI—Cecil Mack, who left his home on the Uchelet reserve more than 15 years ago to make his living in a white community, disagrees with Chief Simon Baker of Squamish who favors dissolution of the reserve system.

Mr. Mack comes of a line of hereditary chiefs of the Uchelet band, but left the reserve because he said he wanted a better life for his family.

"Perhaps the Squamish people are ready. Perhaps here on Vancouver Island the Duncan area may be approaching this. They were among the first to take over the handling of their own funds, but not all Indian people are ready to make the change from reserve living," Mr. Mack said.

"Some people can make it when they leave the reserve but some are still backward even though they may live in town."

Homes Built

"Eventually, yes. But it should be a gradual process. We have a long way to go yet in educating our young people before the reserves become municipal centres. I agree it is inevitable eventually, but not for today," Mr. Mack said.

On a recent visit to Uchelet Mr. Mack said he was surprised to see so many new homes being built on the reserve. The thriving community has a large Indian population, most of whom make their homes on the reserve across the inlet from the town.

Many of the men make their living fishing, others work for logging companies and the money they earn is being put to good use by many improving their homes on Indian land.

Steady Work

Housing is the worst problem facing Indians who make the move to city living, Mr. Mack said.

But he and his handsome wife found a way to solve accommodation problems.

They have not yet been able to buy a home, although Mr. Mack works most months of the year as a carpenter with a construction firm.

Recently they had to move from a house they had lived in for some time because it was being extensively renovated, with a resulting rent rise beyond their means.

Unlike some Indian families who are rejected everywhere as prospective tenants, the Macks were soon comfortably settled in another four-room cottage.

Not Rejected

"We have a system, when we move, we ask for references from our land lord. When we want to rent, we give the new landlord our references," Mr. Mack explained.

Possibly part of the explanation lies with his wife Jessie, whose immaculate housekeeping and excellent housekeeping make an immediate impression.

The Mack's lively four-year-old grandson makes his home with them, and few people, even landlords who prefer not to have children in their rental unit, can resist his engaging smile and shining eyes.

No Help Yet

Results of the federal government's off-reserve housing scheme are not yet visible in the Alberni Valley.

He admitted he knew of no one who had as yet managed to get such a grant, but felt prospects were good for some.

Unfortunately, it is late for grandparents, like Cecil and Jessie Mack, to make application for such a grant.

But it is not too late for their son.

"He has a fine employment record, 14 years with one company. We hope he is successful in getting a home of his own," Mr. Mack said.

People Not Ready

If Mr. Mack does not think the reserves should be abolished, would he and his wife consider returning to the reserve at Uchelet, possibly when he retires?

Mrs. Mack's gentle voice had a firm answer for that.

She glanced into her kitchen, with its older style but immaculate equipment. "Not until they have running water and power," was her reply.

Just Go Easy

Recent changes and others advocated by the federal government offer considerable hope for the Indians, Mr. Mack said.

"I don't think it is necessary to have marches and demonstrations. Recently there has been much more interest in our problems. We must take it easy, about."

and let the government have time to make these changes, now that they are finally getting around to it.

"I do not believe people should rush into things, such as the suggested municipal set-up for some reserve areas, like Esquimalt for example. Frank Howard warns us we should study such a municipal set-up carefully," said Mr. Mack, who lived for some years in the Victoria area.

He urged, however, more co-operation in some other areas.

"Some groups insist on hanging on to their aboriginal rights, but you can't have it both ways."

Co-operate

As an experienced fisherman before going to the city, Mr. Mack said he felt there should be every co-operation with the Fisheries Department. "It is only a matter of about three weeks that the Mainland Indians are being asked to give up their right to fish," he said.

"If it will help provide greater catches for all, I think they should do it."

To a man who has been making it on his own, for himself, his family and now for his grandchild, that's what the so-called 'Indian situation' is all about.

IWA Fights Six-Day Plan

DUNCAN — The officers of the Duncan local of the IWA are determined there will not be a single company under contract with the local union, allowed to implement a six-day work week schedule.

He later notified the company of the local union's position. This position was unanimously upheld by the crew.

Black Ink Flowing for Arts Ball

NANAIMO — Ticket prices to the Centennial Arts Ball have been dropped, because volunteer labor has reduced the cost involved. Although the ball is to provide funds for scholarships, the group decided the pass on savings to the people who will make it such a thing as making too much," said Barbara Despres. "We want to make this a success, not a financial burden," she added, announcing ticket prices will be $10 instead of $15. Refunds to those who have already bought tickets will be made.

One of the main savings is the main attraction — the culinary arts class of the Vocational School, which is preparing food at cost. The class, which last year won first place in almost every category it entered will present a display of work which includes decorated dishes, rare edibles, and ice and wax carvings.

Another is the 12-piece orchestra of musicians from many of the leading bands in town, gathered under the direction of Tommy Donald. Local artists such as Al Ranger, the Adult Nanaimo Arts Club, and Gino Sedola have thrown their support behind the ball by providing decorations, thereby reducing costs to provide commercial decorations. Mrs. Lillian Olson, co-convenor for the ball, said "the ball will be an annual event, but only if supported by the people." Schools Packed In Alberni

PORT ALBERNI — Extremely crowded conditions in high schools were reported by School Superintendent William Gurney.

Enrollment was not quite as high as had been estimated, with 1,300 youngsters enrolled Sept. 15. However the greatest increase came at the secondary school level, with crowding at ADSS as bad as ever, and crowding at A. W. Neill and the newly erected Dunn School considerably worse. The Senior Secondary School had an enrollment of 1,204, compared to 1,201 at the beginning of school last year, and 1,090 at the end of June this year.

JAMMED

A. W. Neill, with a rated capacity of 680, is jammed with 782 pupils.

Principal R. W. Lawson said the demand was being met by establishment of 6 early morning classes, which start at 8:10 a.m.

"Many of the youngsters are being forced into study periods," he informed the board.

"We have math classes of 35 pupils being conducted in drafting rooms which normally accommodate 24."

"What is more, it looks like being even worse next year."

LONG PROBLEM

High school principal W. F. Ramsay said things were not improved this year at the high school, where overcrowding is apparently a perennial problem. In spite of portable classrooms and addition of the vocational wing.

If additions to the Dunn Junior Secondary School can be completed by next September this would ease the strain somewhat on the bulging high school, but will make little difference to Neill School, he said.

A community services complex is in the planning stage and the Dunn School addition phase are on the way, Trustee William Beckingham reminded Mr. Ramsay.

URGENT NEED

At Dunn, opened last September, enrollment jumped from 275 to 420, pointing up the urgent need for all possible speed with the planned extension.

The board also agreed during the meeting to provide transportation again this year, so that Dunn pupils may take physical education.

Youngsters from the school must be transported to various outside areas, such as the drill hall and the arena, since a gymnasium was not included in the original building, and a referendum covering buildings was defeated last year.

Two Foggy Collisions

Bashed Ships Safe

Puget Sound collision victims Fairland and Silver Shelton.

Two ships which collided head-on at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait early Wednesday morning are tied up today for unloading and repairs along the Dallas Road waterfront.

The 8,000-ton Marie Skou, which lost her bow while running a hole about 40 by 80 feet in the No. 1 hold of the 40,000-ton Japanese ship Chitose Maru, is being unloaded at Ogden Point and may later go into Esquimalt graving dock for inspection.

MAIDEN VOYAGE
The Japanese ship, which was heading toward the Vancouver area on her maiden voyage to load coal, is at Victoria Machinery Depot's Dallas Road plant, where repairs will probably be started today.

The collision was one of two major mishaps which occurred Wednesday in fog-shrouded waters of the Pacific northwest. There were no injuries in either collision.

SHIP BEACHED
In the other collision, the 450-foot van ship Fairland ripped a 25-foot gash in the hull of the 18,000-ton freighter Silver Shelton, in Puget Sound north of Seattle. The van ship, which carries truck trailers, lost her bow. The Liberian registered Shelton was beached by a tug.

The Japanese managed to raise the hole on the port side, near the bow, above water level by pumping ballast water from the double bottom tanks of the Chitose Maru.

CARGO TANK
The Danish-registered Marie Skou, with water in her No. 1 and No. 2 hold flooding, reached Ogden Point at noon.

The shipping agents were unable to confirm earlier reports that damage to the two ships is expected to run higher than $1,000,000.

National Socreds 'Dead' Member Crosses Floor

OTTAWA (CP) — H. A. Servatius, quit Social Credit Ottawa, claiming a tender conscience about Social Credit Prime Minister Pearson to its wailing of the Progressive Conservative Party.

The 42-year-old MP for Medicine Hat, Alberta, told a press conference:

"From my observations, the leaders of the Social Credit League of Alberta will continue to pursue the source of seeking an accommodation or 'marriage' with the Progressive Conservative party."

'DELIGHTED'
"My convictions and conscience, in keeping with the commitment I have made to the people of my constituency, prohibit me from endorsing or supporting this course."

A spokesman said Mr. Pearson's comment on the Olson step was:

"I am delighted." Acceptance of Mr. Olson's application, to be discussed at a weekend caucus of Liberal MPs and Senators, would mean the minority government's support.

Bennett:

But Why Join Fuzzy Liberals?

The defection of an Alberta Socred MP to the ranks of the Liberals won't change the party either federally or provincially in B.C., Premier Bennett said Wednesday.

The premier played down the possible effects of the decision by H. A. Bad Olson of Medicine Hat on the Socred organization in this province.

Mr. Olson's announcement has been blamed on Alberta Premier Manning's booklet entitled "Political Realignment" which proposed a national Socreds merge with Tories.

Mr. Bennett continued to sidestep direct answers to questions about his views on the book. He simply said it was well written and expressed a view to which Mr. Manning was fully entitled.

Of Mr. Olson's decision the premier said: "Everybody is entitled to make his own choice... but I don't know how anybody could join that fuzzy Liberal party."

Mr. Bennett said the latest development should not damage the B.C. "on-to-Ottawa" drive in the next federal election.

"What we need are MPs, more than the three we have now, who will speak not for this government but for the people."

Commons Dilemma Would Vanish

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — There is talk — and in the most influential Liberal circles too — that Prime Minister Pearson might appoint former Conservative leader Diefenbaker to the Senate. (See also Page 40.)

"It would solve Dief's dilemma," suggested a leading member of the Pearson

cabinet to a pair of reporters who paused Wednesday at his table in the parliamentary cafeteria to exchange the current gossip-of-the-day.

The Diefenbaker dilemma is that while, after 27 years in Parliament, he prides himself in being what he calls "a House of Commons man," he has said it wouldn't be proper for him to take his place on the backbenches now as private MP for Prince Albert.

He has spoken of the possible difficulties or even embarrassment that his presence in the Commons might cause a Conservative leader Robert Stanfield.

He has talked too, of getting to work on his memoirs, complaining that he can't get started until the government provides him with "adequate" staff.

And he can't assure that staff unless he remains in Parliament.

So, suggests this Liberal cabinet minister who is busy circulating the possibility of the appointment, the Senate is the way out of the difficulty.

"It would be popular — you'd be surprised just how popular — with the public," argues the Liberal front-bencher. "The PM would get the same kind of high marks people gave him when he appointed Roly Michener, the beaten Conservative Commons speaker) first as high commissioner to India and then as governor-general."

It would be considered by Canadians generally, he went on, as "the right thing, the decent thing to do."

This reason or motive for sending the former "Chief" to the Senate, was apart altogether from the fact that Diefenbaker with all those Parliamentary years behind him, would be what is usually

Nigeria Splintered

Shells Chase New Rebels

LAGOS (Reuters) — Nigeria's federal government Wednesday claimed its troops have entered the city of Benin in the Midwestern Region, only a few hours after a radio broadcast declared the region an independent republic.

A federal government military spokesman said government troops began shelling Benin in the afternoon and marched in two hours later.

Troops from the Eastern Region, which now calls itself the independent republic of Biafra, appeared to have withdrawn to the east, the spokesman said.

A radio broadcast had proclaimed that the Midwest, Nigeria's smallest region, now was the independent republic of Benin.

Maj. Albert Olanrewaju, U.S.-trained army doctor and the region's military administrator, announced the breakdown in a broadcast from Benin, the region's capital.

The split followed 10 weeks of civil war in which the rebel Eastern Region captured the Midwest in early August. The Eastern capital is Enugu.

The East declared itself independent May 30.

Israeli Tank Claims Three Patrol Boats

From UPI

Israel reported that one of its tanks on the east bank of the Suez Canal sank three Egyptian patrol boats on the southern reaches of the waterway Wednesday. Israel claimed the gunnery of the Egyptian vessels violated an agreement by the United Nations. (See also page 38)

Egypt denied that any of its ships were in the canal and accused Israeli forces of shelling the city of Suez and Port Said in two separate bombardments, killing four civilians and wounding 11.

Twisters Coil From Beulah

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Hurricane Beulah, one of the mightiest storms in history, slashed multi-million-dollar destruction into the lower Texas Coast Wednesday. The storm continued to spread death and havoc into the night.

Beulah did her worst at Port Isabel and Brownsville before dawn, coming ashore with 150-mile-an-hour winds at her center. Wednesday night she continued to flay coastal areas with hurricane winds.

The death toll stood at 30. Six died in Texas.

Tornadoes spun off the big storm in record numbers. The Texas department of public safety counted 27 Wednesday — a record by 18 and Beulah showed no signs that she was near death after 12 days.

CORPUS CHRISTI HIT

Hurricane winds hit Corpus Christi, 190 miles from here, before sundown and continued into the late evening. Tornadoes also continued to develop. One spun near Corpus Christi in the late evening and another was started 250 miles to the north.

State disaster planning officials warned persons in the south Texas coastal plains to remain in shelters.

TROOPS IN STREETS

There were no reports of looting but downtown Brownsville was barricaded and the business district was patrolled by armed troops.

There was more damage in Mexico, across the Rio Grande River from here. How extensive it was, and whether there were any casualties, was not known immediately.

The little ranch settlements of Sarita and Riviera south of Corpus Christi were pounded by 90-mile-an-hour winds Wednesday evening winds up to 75 miles an hour slashed at Corpus Christi after a day of gales. Hurricane force began at 7 p.m.

POWER CUT

Damage was widespread. Entire communities were isolated.

Electric power was cut off to almost all the storm-hit region. Some evacuees began leaving for their homes but Red Cross officials at Brownsville warned of dangerous flooding, tornadoes from the still mighty storm and downed power lines. Food was running short in the Brownsville shelters.

Red Cross officials in Brownsville said it would be several days before the damage could be estimated at this tip-of-Texas city.

Weathermen said Beulah would continue to move inland, a death sentence even for a storm of her power.

Hippies 'Lazy Loafs'

VANCOUVER (CP) — P. A. Gagliardi, British Columbia's colorful highways minister, just about blew the hippies out of the province Wednesday night with sheer lung power.

Speaking at the top of his voice to a service club dinner meeting, he called them "lazy, long-haired loafs," who should start contributing something to society.

"I'm going to speak out against these dirty, long-haired people who go down the streets in smelly clothes, waving their dirty locks in the air."

"I feel like grabbing a pair of slippers to shear the locks from these people who are making a mockery of our way of life."

Liberal leader Ray Perrault told the Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night he "can't agree" to demands that the injunction law be administered by a government-appointed board.

Efficiency experts at B.C. Forest Products are "sneaking around" lumber piles...

Murray Drew, president of the Victoria local of International Woodworkers of America, said the plywood plant's crew is refusing to work overtime until the experts go away.

"They have eliminated people from the work force and are requiring overtime," added Mr. Drew. "They watch you all day and make a report on you."

He said the minute the efficiency experts go into another B.C. Forest Products operation there will be a ban on overtime.

"I also suggest that if they get into the shipyards, overtime will be banned."

Resolutions Rap
Bill 43, Press

Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night endorsed eight resolutions which it will send to next month's British Columbia Federation of Labor convention in Vancouver.

They include protests of B.C.'s Bill 43, described as repugnant to the Canadian Bill of Rights, and a claim that the daily press is "using supposed news items to condition people to its way of thinking."

The VLC also wants a Hansard record of the legislature, a full-time labor minister and a government-appointed ombudsman. It asks the Canadian Labor Congress to send a task force to B.C. to organize the unorganized.

Kayak Class Lacking

Greater Victoria Centennial Society co-ordinator Jerry Gossley called Wednesday for more entries in the kayak and open classes in Saturday's centennial boat races on the Gorge.

The centennial office has received 26 entries in a canoe race but only five for a kayak race and only one for the open race, in which any kind of two-man, human-powered craft can be used.

Mr. Gossley issued an appeal for more people to join in the Saturday afternoon events by telephoning their entries to the centennial office, 385-1465.

It was "scandalous" that government conciliators generally receive less pay than the delegates from labor and management with whom they negotiate.

"Until there is a change of government in this province, I am not willing to transfer that responsibility from the courts."

REASONABLE

Mr. Perrault said he thought the Liberal proposals were "reasonable" and unions should realize "this regime (Social Credit) is not going to throw out injunctions in total."

It was "offensive" to his thinking that the courts would take evidence when a party to the dispute was not present, he explained. In such cases, it is "essential for the courts to exercise great care."

Mr. Perrault warned the unions that their goal of total abolition of injunctions "won't be productive."

PART OF BLAME

He told the unionists that they, along with management, must take part of the blame for Canada's inflation problems. Governments also have been imprudent with their spending, he said.

However, he pointed out that workers in British Columbia deserve more pay than those elsewhere in Canada because they are the most productive in the country.

Collective bargaining in this province is often a "crisis confrontation" with both sides oblivious to the public, he said. The Liberal leader also thought any donations of building materials would also be appreciated," he said.

ANY DONATIONS

"We had a number of offers to start a building fund after the fire," said Mr. Drummond. "We are hoping that those offers still hold good."

He said donations for the fund could be left at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce or the Royal Bank at Colwood Quay.

He said fair officials hoped to put up 10,000 square feet of exhibition buildings, using volunteer labor.

A resolution calling for a "full-time minister of education" will open the Greater Victoria School Board's campaign next month for a more militant B.C. School Trustees' Association.

A meeting of Greater Victoria trustees decided Wednesday to state their case as soon as debate begins at the BCSTA convention in Vancouver Oct. 4-6.

The Greater Victoria board wants the BCSTA to play a more political role in shaping B.C. public education. Feeling here is that the 300-member trustees' group has generally been ignored by the department of education when it presents its annual list of resolutions.

TEA PARTY

"Unless we're prepared to politic a bit, it's going to remain that way," said board chairman Peter Bunn at an informal meeting called to decide action on upcoming resolutions.

The annual convention, he commented, is "a tea party." John Portman, past chairman of the board, voiced his opinion that the BCSTA is not forceful enough in dealing with the provincial government. Quiet diplomacy is not having an effect in improving the status of education, he said.

FIRE FADES

"They (trustees) seem to lose fire when they get on the executive," he remarked.

A reply to resolutions passed more than 11 months ago did not arrive from education minister Peterson until last week, after 1967 resolutions had been prepared.

"To me it's an insult," said Mr. Bunn Wednesday night.

FULL-TIME

First on the convention's list of resolutions is Victoria's call for a full-time minister of education. Mr. Peterson is also minister of labor.

The four trustees present at Wednesday's meeting voiced opposition to another resolution by the BCSTA executive which urged the government to bar all teachers from sitting as school trustees.

NOT DEMOCRATIC

Les Kerrigan and Ted Wood agreed with Mr. Bunn and Mr. Portman that the resolution is undemocratic.

The board will also sponsor resolutions calling for increased government participation in the cost of acquiring more parking space at schools, for school boards' representation on regional boards of health, and for all education funds to come from general revenue of the province.

Bennett Plans Standardized Notices

Tax Card to Tell All

Legislation to bring in standardized local tax notices for all B.C. residents is in the cards for the 1968 session, Premier Bennett indicated Wednesday.

He told a press conference that his remarks were merely adding to those made by Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell to the Union of B.C. Municipalities in Pithou George.

SINGLE FORM

The premier said there may well be legislation at the next session which would provide for what he termed a "master" tax notice, setting out both school and general taxes as well as the homeowner's grant on a single form.

Mr. Bennett suggested, in the form now being studied, the new tax notice would show the homeowner's grant applied to school taxes. Anything in excess of the amount of school tax would be credited to the general taxes.

DIRECT AID

The whole idea being, he indicated, to make people more aware of how much the government was contributing in direct aid to local taxes. This question has bothered the government in the wake of renewed complaints at the last session that property owners were being overloaded.

South Atlantic Trouble or Local Mischief?

Call for Help Found in Bottle

Saanich police are investigating a call for help purporting to come from someone shipwrecked on a small volcanic island in the South Atlantic.

The help message, scrawled in ink on a piece of weathered paper, was found inside a pop bottle that washed ashore at Cordova Bay. The finder, Mrs. Hugh Aylmer, of 5084

Lochside, took the bottle and note to police.

Det. Sgt. Robin Stewart said the Pepsi Cola bottle had been corked with two small pieces of wood. There was salt water in the bottle when it was found.

Police technicians examined the almost obliterated message and reported it said: "Help, I am stranded at 20 degrees south latitude, 30 degrees west longitude."

There was no date on the message.

The only land in the vicinity given is Trinidad Island, a small volcanic island rising to about 2,000 feet. It is a Brazilian possession, located 700 miles east of Rio de Janeiro.

Its map location is 20 latitude, 29 degrees 20 minutes west longitude.

Sgt. Stewart said Thursday morning identification officers of Saanich police had reason to believe the message had been written on a "popicle" wrapper.

"The paper was well eaten away," he said.

He said there were no marks on the bottle to indicate where the soft drink had been bottled.

But he said the department was not rushing to check out the measure, because even if it was authentic, it would be too late to rescue anyone. However, he said he intended to pass it on to proper authorities today.

Mrs. Aylmer, who spotted the bottle at the water's edge while walking her dog Monday, said she thought it was a "kid's thing."

"That's what I think it is, but I turned it in because you never know," she said.
